Premier 'More Optimistic Than Ever' on Columbia

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said today he is "more optimistic than ever" that the Columbia River power project will go ahead.

The premier made the statement on his return this morning to Victoria from Seattle, where he attended a Democratic party banquet at which President John Kennedy was guest speaker.

President Kennedy and Premier Bennett talked together twice during the dinner, and later held a 15-minute meeting in the president's suite at the Olympic Hotel.

Mr. Bennett, in an airport interview here, admitted he met U.S. officials to discuss hydro power development in B.C.

"The reception couldn't have been more friendly," he said. However, the premier refused to confirm or deny the private interview with the president, nor would he say if they talked about the Columbia.

"I'm not going to add or detract from any assumption anybody else makes," he said. But, as Mr. Bennett had explained before going to the Seattle banquet, as a provincial premier he was in no way officially entitled to discuss negotiations on an international question such as the Columbia.

Secrecy Necessitated by Protocol

The secrecy shrouding the private meeting with the president was explained by observers as a necessity of protocol.

Officially the federal government is the sole negotiator with the Americans on developing the Columbia.

However, Mr. Bennett was obviously cheered by the reception from the Americans to B.C.'s stand on power.

He wants to sell them all the downstream benefits available to Canada in the U.S. once dams are built at Duncan and Arrow Lakes and Mica Creek in B.C.

He is convinced he can get enough money from the sale to pay for building the three dams.

Ottawa is apparently against this idea and wants the benefits returned as cheap power to the province.

Mr. Bennett said he was very impressed with the friendliness of U.S. government officials toward him as B.C.'s premier.

When introduced at the banquet—a testimonial to his friend U.S. Senator Warren Magnuson—by Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, Mr. Bennett was given a standing ovation, led by the president.

Mr. Mansfield, after a glowing introduction, told guests at the $100-a-plate dinner the premier was doing "a great favor" by attending.

Mr. Bennett said that as far as B.C. is concerned there is no delay here on launching the Columbia project.

He said that through the power commission the province is "doing everything possible" to complete engineering on the three dams.

Next step will be ratification by Ottawa of the treaty with the U.S. setting out the details. Congress has already ratified it.

YACHT CAPT. KILLS SELF

MIAMI (UPI)—Capt. Julian Harvey, skipper of the ill-fated ketch Blue Bell that sank Sunday night in the Bahamas, killed himself today in a Miami hotel.

Harvey, 45, of Fort Lauderdale, was one of the two survivors of the sinking of the Blue Bell. A passing freighter picked up 11-year-old Terry Jo Duperrault Thursday. She is recuperating from severe shock and exposure at a Miami hospital.

Swiss Farmers In Riot

BERN (AP)—Rioting Swiss farmers besieged the parliament building for more than two hours today, repeatedly beating back police.

Several persons were reported injured before police finally dispersed the rioters with tear gas and fire hoses. The farmers were demonstrating for higher food prices. It was the first violent demonstration.

They threw rotten eggs and vegetables at police, held up buses and traffic, slashed tires and chanted anti-government slogans.

'Non-Nuclear Club' Plan Before UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Sweden and five other countries today introduced a resolution in the General Assembly's main political committee calling for establishment of a "non-nuclear club."

The measure, sponsored by Austria, Ceylon, Ethiopia, Libya and Sudan, in addition to Sweden, calls for action by the UN disarmament commission on a pact among countries to refrain from manufacturing or otherwise acquiring nuclear weapons and refusing to receive such arms on their territory.

Official reports from Kindu residents said hands and feet chopped from the airmen were handed around as trophies. A severed hand was tossed on the desk of a World Health Organization doctor as a gesture of contempt.

UN spokesman George Ivan Smith said the UN handed a letter to Premier Cyrille Adoula insisting on punitive actions.

UN Planes Attack Congolese

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters)—United Nations planes have attacked three strongholds of mutinous national Congolese army troops in the Kindu area of Kivu province, according to radio reports received here today.

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The United Nations flew Malayan troops to Kindu today to round up and punish Congolese Army butchers of 13 Italian UN airmen.

Planeloads of Malayans were flown to the Lualaba River port, in Kivu province with orders to encircle and disarm the killers and others in a force of 1,000 reported to have been incited to mutiny by the Congo's Lumumbist vice-premier, Antoine Gizenga. About 80 of the drunken and undisciplined soldiery—undeterred by a 200-man Malayan contingent on duty at the Kindu airfield—shot and cut up the Italians near the town prison Saturday.

Cries of "they are Flemish Belgians" accompanied the massacre. Parts of the bodies were tossed to excited spectators.

BROUGHT SUPPLIES

The mob had set upon the Italians as they dined in the Malayan officers' mess after landing two transports carrying powdered milk and hospital supplies.

The UN organization in the Congo, headed by Sture Linnar of Sweden, demanded immediate arrest of the Congolese commander at Kindu—who disavowed responsibility by declaring "you know how soldiers are"—and establishment of a United Nations-Congolese commission to seek out "the remaining culprits."

In a report to New York, Linnar said all resources of the UN Congo command would be used to disarm the Congolese, seal off the Kindu area and round up all suspects.

"Pieces of the bodies were distributed to the large crowd gathered to watch the massacre," Linnar said, "and some parts of the bodies were also flung at non-Congolese who were present."

"Two mutilated bodies were dragged through the main streets of Kindu and exhibited.... All the remains of the bodies were then thrown into the river."

GRUESOME SPECTACLE

Official reports from Kindu residents said hands and feet chopped from the airmen were handed around as trophies. A severed hand was tossed on the desk of a World Health Organization doctor as a gesture of contempt.

UN spokesman George Ivan Smith said the UN handed a letter to Premier Cyrille Adoula insisting on punitive actions.

CONGO CHIEF REPORTS

More Troops Definite Need

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Acting Secretary-General U Thant summoned his top Congo advisers into private session today to hear recommendations from the United Nations military commander in the Congo that his forces be strengthened to cope with mounting violence.

U Thant conferred with his Congo advisory committee amid anger at UN headquarters over the brutal slaying of 13 Italian airmen of the UN command by mutinous Congolese soldiers in Kivu province.

Present were Maj.-Gen. Sean McKeown, commander of the UN Congo force, and Conor Cruise O'Brien, chief UN representative in the Congo's Katanga province. They were ordered here to brief U Thant on the situation.

McKeown said on arrival Thursday the UN needs more men and equipment to deal with the mounting crisis. He added that those responsible for the slayings would have to be apprehended but that this would be difficult since Congolese officers have little control over their troops.

The UN Congo force once numbered more than 22,000 men, but is down to 15,490 since the withdrawal of contingents from Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco, Tunisia and the United Arab Republic. It is expected to lose the Nigerian contingent of 1,711 within a few weeks. Canada has about 250 men in the Congo force.

There were expressions of outrage from the United States, Britain, France and other members of the Security Council which met to discuss the mounting crisis in the breakaway province of Katanga.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson told the council the "revolting murder" pointed out the need for UN action against the mutinous force of about 1,000 believed to be led by leftist Antoine Gizenga.

Shield From Cancer Hinted as Possible

CHICAGO (AP)—An immunity shield protecting normal persons from developing cancer may be a material manufactured in the liver, three medical investigators suggested today.

They said some evidence of a mechanism of this type has been indicated in animal cancer transplant experiments.

The doctors said several scientists have demonstrated that a cancer suppressing substance is present in a high degree in the blood serum of guinea pigs. They added that they have detected its presence to a lesser degree in the serum of humans.

'Outside Evaluation'—Perrault

A major political battle is looming over the price to be paid by the B.C. Toll Authority for the Black Ball ferry lines.

It was touched off when Premier Bennett announced today he intended to pay the asking price of $7,200,000 set by the Puget Sound Navigation Company, the parent firm in Seattle.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault demanded immediately that the payment should not be fixed without referring the matter to "a duly appointed board of marine appraisers."

'FAIR PRICE'

Premier Bennett, who confirmed Thursday the plan to take the Black Ball's B.C. service under public ownership, disclosed on his return to Victoria that he intended to recommend the $7.2 million figure to the Toll Authority and the cabinet.

In Thursday's statement he had indicated that the figure set by shareholders of the Puget Sound company would

New ferries for the Black Ball service between Nanaimo and the mainland probably will be built by the government this winter, Premier Bennett said today.

This means they would go into service late next year or early in 1963.

have to go before the Toll Authority and be worked out.

Today Mr. Bennett said: "This is not overpriced; it's a fair price."

The figure covers five ships, seven terminals, the major franchise between Departure Bay and Horseshoe Bay and some cash investment.

The amount had already been attacked by CCF leader Robert Strachan, who declared Thursday he did not think it was worth $7.2 million.

Mr. Perrault today said: "The need for independent evaluation is even more apparent in view of a Black Ball director, Einar Gunderson, also being a prominent member of the B.C. Bridge and Toll Authority which would authorize the purchase."

OLD EQUIPMENT

After a study of the situation, Mr. Perrault said, it seemed evident the taxpayers could be paying far too much for a company which had little to offer but over-age equipment.

He pointed out that capital assets in Canada of the com-

ATLANTA, Ga.—The Georgia department of revenue says there is a Santa Claus.

And it ruled that Santa Claus can collect a tax on beer sold by a veterans' club.

Santa Claus is a crossroads community in southeastern Georgia. The 1960 census reported five persons living there, but the state now says the number has risen to 11.

Santa Claus was issued a city charter in 1941, when it had only two residents. The validity of that charter was challenged by the Toombs County commission in a dispute over the right to issue a beer licence to the veterans' club.

Jack Hodgkins, deputy commissioner of the Georgia department of revenue, ruled Thursday that Santa Claus is a city and has the right to issue the licence.

MENASHA, Wis. — Menasha high school boys will continue swimming in the buff despite protests of their parents.

The Board of Education decided to continue nude swimming because it promotes "sanitation, cleanliness, physical attitudes" and saves time. And not only that, the board said, it would cost $3,000 to provide swimming trunks.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE — Norman Gilbertson was so absent-minded he walked around his office with his trousers off — in the presence of his female assistant.

The woman's husband, Ronald Hamblin, sued for divorce, alleging misconduct between his wife, Olive, 39, and Gilbertson.

"That could be a serious thing," said Judge Cyril Newcastle Thursday, "but I have evidence, which I accept, that he was careless about going about partly changed."

Gilbertson was caught with his trousers down when fire broke out in the movie theatre he managed.

Someone burst into his office and found him in the process of changing his clothes and trousers.

But the judge, ruling this was not evidence of misconduct, rejected the divorce suit.

DETROIT — Joseph Ferkovic ordered a new display case for his gift shop.

The case was 10 feet long and weighed 800 pounds. When it was delivered, it took four men to wrestle it off a truck. The men left it in an alley while Ferkovic decided where to put it in his shop.

Ferkovic decided in about half an hour and went to the alley. The case was gone.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Ricky Ragazine, 4, learned his lessons in modesty almost too well.

His mother, Mrs. Jennie Ragazine, fell into a furnace pipe Thursday while trying to retrieve a broom that had fallen into it.

She couldn't get out and her screams awakened Ricky.

"Run to the neighbors and get somebody to help me," she said she told Ricky.

His reply: "Mommie, I just have my underpants on. I'm ashamed to go outside."

Mrs. Ragazine begged and pleaded. Finally, after about half an hour, Ricky ventured next door, clad in his underpants, to get help.

The neighbor called police and by the time they arrived had Mrs. Ragazine out of the pipe.

tion. Though it was left open for Adoula's regime to assume responsibility, the UN indicated it intends to carry out the punishment itself.

"We have to create a set of conditions in which we can take any action required," Smith told reporters.

MUST BE PUNISHED

Adoula expressed disgust at the killings in a broadcast and said "the guilty must be punished with utmost severity." He made no direct reference to the UN plans.

Disarmament has often been proposed in the past as a way of removing the danger of unruly troops. Each time the Congolese army has rejected the proposal with a vehemence little short of panic. Now, however, feeling is running high in Leopoldville political circles at the evidence in recent weeks of growing army unrest.

Gen. Joseph Mobutu, the army's commander-in-chief, was reported close to tears while discussing the acts of defiance.

"It is unfortunate," said an officer on Mobutu's staff, "that 13 UN lives had to be lost before the United Nations would move to put down the mutinous troops who have followed Gizenga all this time."

Few events have angered UN officials here as much as the Kindu massacre. UN flags were lowered to half-mast. Limer expressed his "heartfelt sympathy to the families of our colleagues."

The UN reported no further outbreaks against white people in Kindu since Saturday. The spokesman firmly declined to add any information about Gizenga, who the UN and Congolese government believe was in Kindu early this week.

"We simply do not know where Mr. Gizenga is at this moment," Smith repeated in reply to reporters' questions.

The opinion was widespread among diplomats in Leopoldville that Gizenga tried to capitalize on the troops' mutiny to help in his own resistance to the central government.

It was unclear whether he gave up this attempt on seeing how far out of control the troops had become, or whether he is in fact still there, hoping to benefit in some way.

The UN plan to encircle the area and neutralize the troops could affect adversely the political fortune of the one-time rebel leader, a leftist who still claims to be the only legitimate heir to Patrice Lumumba, the late ex-premier.

Mr. Perrault said since Premier Bennett had admitted it would be necessary to build two new ferries at once, and since the old ferries were of only nominal value due to obsolescence, it seemed that most of the $7.2 million was being paid for the Black Ball terminals and the franchise.

The franchise, he added, was granted to Black Ball by Premier Bennett several years ago in return for a $300,000 interest-free loan which was used to pay for a section of road between Vancouver and Powell River.

SUNBURN, EXPOSURE, SHOCK are being fought by 11-year-old Terry Jo Duperrault in Mercy Hospital, Miami, where she was flown by U.S. Coast Guard helicopter after being picked up from a life raft in the Atlantic Ocean. Terry had been believed lost with the rest of her family when their chartered boat sank off the Bahamas last Sunday. (AP Wirephoto.)

Girl Likely to Survive 3 1/2-Day Ordeal on Raft

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Pretty, flaxen-haired Terry Jo Duperrault, who drifted for 3 1/2 days aboard a life raft in the Atlantic, was in critical condition today, but her doctor said "I think she will make it."

A spokesman at Mercy Hospital said 11-year-old Terry Jo was drowsy and there had been little change since she was brought in by coast guard helicopter Thursday.

The Green Bay, Wis., child had clung to a white cork raft, riding a sea made choppy by 16-miles-an-hour winds, since Sunday night. Her feet were shrivelled from long exposure to the salt water and her skin was colored a deep pink from the sun. Her lips appeared to have been painted.

Terry Jo and six others were aboard a chartered ketch, the Blue Belle, which went down in a sudden squall 50 miles northwest of Nassau, Bahamas.

The skipper, Capt. Julian Harvey, 45, was found Monday in a lifeboat with the body of Terry Jo's sister, Renee, 7, and taken to Nassau by a passing freighter. Harvey was suffering from shock and exposure.

Also aboard the 60-foot ketch were Terry Jo's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Duperrault, her brother, Brian, 14, and Mary Dene Harvey, wife of the skipper. With the rescue of Harvey and Terry Jo, and with the recovery of Renee's body, the coast guard continued to search for the missing Dr. and Mrs. Duperrault, their son Brian and Mrs. Harvey.

The child was given a small amount of water and orange juice and put to bed while a coast guard helicopter flew to meet the freighter 85 miles off Miami.

The helicopter was unable to land on the freighter and lifted the child in a basket. She awoke briefly.

"She went right back to sleep when we put her inside the 'copter and didn't say a thing," said Lt.-Cmdr. Robert Pope, the pilot.

Dr. Franklyn Verdon said Terry Jo was suffering from exposure, loss of fluid, a heart beating too fast because of shock and the threat of pneumonia.

"But I think she will make it; I think she will live," he said.

Wrong Fuel Downs Plane

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A plane was to leave here today in an attempt to rescue 11 men stranded on an ice floe because someone put the wrong fuel in their aircraft. The air force said diesel oil instead of high octane gasoline was accidentally pumped into the tanks of a navy patrol plane Thursday at the Arlis research station near the North Pole. The plane, on loan to the

Right to Use A-Arms Asked By Adenauer

Equal Voice With U.S.

BONN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer says the North Atlantic Treaty Organization must be given authority to order retaliation with U.S. nuclear weapons assigned to its members—a power now held solely by President Kennedy.

Adenauer told a press conference Thursday the West must enter into any negotiations with Russia from the strongest of bargaining positions. That, he said, called for strengthening of NATO military forces to permit them to wage nuclear warfare without White House clearance.

"I base this on an expert opinion by Gen. Adolph Heusinger who said that one hour may decide our fate and that the president may not be reachable to make a decision," Adenauer said. Heusinger, former chief of staff of West German armed forces, became chairman of the permanent NATO military committee last April.

Adenauer said that "there must be a change to give NATO the possibility to make the decision to retaliate with atomic weapons before Kennedy can be asked" in case of an emergency.

U.S. CONTROLS WEAPONS
At present NATO has nuclear weapons on the European continent, but they are under exclusive U.S. control. Changes would be required in the U.S. Atomic Energy Act before the custody of the nuclear warheads could be shared with other nations.

The chancellor called the press conference to discuss his views on questions he said would likely come up during next week's meetings with President Kennedy in Washington.

A Wall Divides Them

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer appeared today to be in sharp disagreement over how hard the Western powers should press a demand on Russia for removal of the Berlin wall.

The issue of the Communist-built wall sealing off East Berlin from West Berlin now seems to become a major topic of discussion in the meeting here next week between Adenauer and Kennedy.

PROBLEM DEFINED
The problem of what the West should do about the wall dividing Berlin was sharply defined by Adenauer in Bonn Thursday.

Asked to list points he considered non-negotiable in any discussions with the Russians on the status of the city, Adenauer said: "First of all, the wall must go."

As far as the Berlin wall is concerned, the United States, it is said, agrees that the Western powers cannot do less than insist on the wall's destruction and the restoration of free movement of people between East and West Berlin. But in official quarters here there is no real hope that the Russians will accept such a proposition.

From the U.S. point of view it does not appear, moreover, to be an absolute necessity for an East-West agreement on the future of West Berlin.

Almost One Too Many

BERLIN (AP)—Seven persons escaped East Berlin during the night, West Berlin police reported, but East Berlin police almost captured one refugee who was drunk at the wrong place. The man, who fled recently from East Berlin, reeled up to the Friedrichstrasse crossing and stepped a few inches over the line. An East German policeman grabbed his arm.

Three West Berlin customs inspectors and a West Berlin policeman grabbed the man and pulled him back.

Tshombe Blasts Report On Lumumba's Death

ELISABETHVILLE (AP)—President Moise Tshombe of Katanga Province has described as "completely false" the report by the United Nations commission which investigated the death of former Congo premier Patrice Lumumba.

Lumumba was killed—with two of his followers—in Katanga last January or February. The Katanga government claimed villagers killed them after they escaped from custody.

The UN report alleged that Lumumba was murdered, possibly in the presence of Tshombe, and the actual killing involved two Belgians. Tshombe denied all the points in the commission report. He said: "Why didn't the commission come to Katanga and do their investigations instead of staying in Geneva all the time? They couldn't have got the truth that way. We could have told them just how he died."

When asked whether it was true that the Katanga government had refused to co-operate with the commission and let it come here, Tshombe replied: "No. The commission was set up by United Nations resolution and was told to go to Katanga to investigate but they didn't come here."

He added: "Let the commission come here and investigate and do another report."

To Stifle Criticism?

MR. SPEAKER HUGH SHANTZ says that he will not allow debate in the January session of the legislature on any aspects of the Social Credit expropriation of the B.C. Electric which may be before the courts.

Mr. Shantz had better take a good, hard look at the powers he assumes for making such a statement. He must take an even harder look when he attempts to establish which matters shall, in his judgment, be excluded from the "general discussions" that will be allowed. On what basis will his ruling be made? At stake is the whole process of the legislature—the complete legitimate ventilating of public business in the interests of and for the protection of the public.

Discussion or debate in the legislature is privileged. Within the limitations of the B.N.A. Act the legislature is supreme. At all events, discussion or debate is not considered sub judice unless it prejudices the position of a party to an action or is otherwise in contempt of court.

Mr. Shantz stands on shaky ground, we believe, when he says the Sommers bribery-conspiracy case gives him ample precedent for his announced intention.

The B.C. Electric case is in a civil court. No individual's personal liberty is involved. No jury can be swayed to the prejudice of an accused person.

He cannot, under any circumstances, close the door to general and particular discussion of matters not pinpointed in the actual court action.

He cannot, for instance, stop discussion of the approximate $8 million payment of public funds through the B.C. Electric to the Wenner-Gren interests, revealed recently and belatedly by diligent newspaper inquiry. He cannot forestall discussion of the proposed Peace River power adventure that could cost the public up to a billion dollars.

And he must realize that the principle involved in declaring a case sub judice was never intended to provide a subterfuge by which a government could escape from legislative debate of public business.

Mr. Shantz will do well to recall the Sommers case ruling which he cites as a precedent. Despite its efforts to escape discussion, the Social Credit government was able to do nothing but accept justified criticism in that instance. Its persistent cries that the issue was sub judice merely emphasized its unwillingness to face the questions directed to it—questions in which the public was vitally interested and properly concerned and not matters raised by the opposition in contempt of court.

That is a precedent which Mr. Shantz may profitably note as he reviews the Sommers case.

The True North Strong and Free

FOR SHEER COURAGE IN meeting the vicissitudes of life it would be hard to find a better example than the career of Mr. Vic Ingraham, who died in Vancouver last Tuesday.

As a young man he headed into the Canadian north, and set a record of persevering free enterprise that is still a legend. But it was later, when misfortune struck, that Vic Ingraham's incredible inner resources were revealed. An 18-day struggle to stay alive in 30-degrees-below-zero on Great Bear Lake cost him both legs and most of his fingers through freezing. A year and a half in hospital did not dim his prospects or curb his ambition. While still on crutches—later abandoned—he returned to the northland and took up the trading, transportation and hotel projects that were his chief interests.

That was more than 25 years ago, yet until a heart attack finally cut him down this week Vic Ingraham led a full and active life despite physical handicaps that would have defeated many another man. But he was not too hard to be sympathetic, not too big to be the friend of the little man—the lone prospector, tractor driver or miner.

He left behind him business ventures of which he could be proud, but more particularly a demonstration of courageous triumph over adversity which should remain an inspiration to all.

U. of W. Centenary

YESTERDAY THE UNIVERSITY of Washington held its 100th anniversary convocation—an event of significance to many of its graduates resident here. It was also an event to be noted by Victorians at large as they recall the first degree-granting convocation of Victoria College this summer.

Historically, this city's links with senior university work have been forged with Point Grey. As in earlier years, the majority of our College people leaving for higher study leading to a degree attend the University of British Columbia. But over a long period we have been favoured by indirect associations with the fine institution that is Seattle's pride. It has always extended a welcoming hand to Canadians for graduate and undergraduate study, has given concessions to them and has offered a wide variety of courses to students from Vancouver Island.

On its centenary, many friends here will extend their good wishes to Washington, congratulating it not only on the achievement of its present importance and past accomplishments but on the immense vigor with which it enters a second century of academic, scientific, artistic and athletic pursuits.

Vote for Chancellor

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN many years, alumni of the University of British Columbia have a choice in their vote for the important office of Chancellor. Adding interest to the contest for office this year is the fact that both nominees are outstanding women of British Columbia—Mrs. Frank Ross and Mrs. Henry Angus.

Some 22,000 alumni of the University are entitled to vote, with the closing deadline set for Nov. 28. By exercising their franchise, graduates living on Vancouver Island will fulfill their responsibilities to their Alma Mater and at the same time add to the accelerated interest in higher education in this area.

A CLEAR AND FRANK APPROACH

By B. A. TOBIN

I Urge a Progressive Holding of the Line

WE take a pretty keen interest in civic affairs out our way, and there's a lot of discussion of the election campaign now getting up full steam.

Tobin

Good crowds turn out to the meetings, too, so that the candidates feel the public interest and come up with some pretty forthright stuff. No shilly-shallying around—the audience wants real, straight-from-the-shoulder declarations and it gets them. The Joe Doakes meeting the other night was a good example. Joe is out for a place on the council for the first time. But he has studied previous campaigns pretty closely and attended a good many council meetings. The result is that he has the situation down pretty pat. And he's determined to let everyone know exactly where he stands.

"Friends," he said, "I know that you don't want to hear a lot of doubletalk tonight. You want the straight facts, and I will give them to you. I'll give you my stand item by item."

Obvious Course

"Take amalgamation, for instance. I stand four-square for this on certain conditions. The city and the surrounding municipalities would all be much better off under amalgamation if it turned out to be in their best interests to enter into this arrangement. While in some cases taxes might be increased as a result, we can insist that our own particular taxes will not be thus affected.

"The benefits would include a decided reduction in civic and municipal staffs and a consequent cut in payrolls, although of course we would take every precaution to see that no unemployment resulted from such a step. There would be an advantageous centralization of authority, while still ensuring that the respective members of the amalgamation preserved inviolate their inalienable rights, with no nonsense from any would-be dictators trying to push anybody around.

"I am therefore for amalgamation, but only if we get it, and on the people's own terms. Failing this, you will not find me among those who vote for such a measure. The people's interests must remain supreme."

High Resolve

"And now, my friends, let us turn to the question of zoning. High rise apartments are the latest innovation in housing. But are we going to let these monster buildings encroach on our individual homes and dominate the landscape? Never! Ours is a community of homes, and if I am elected to public office it will remain so. A man's home is his castle. And let us not forget Runnymede or Agincourt.

"At the same time, no man charged with public responsibilities can let himself be unaware of economic factors. We must remember that high rise apartments, for instance, involving concentrated population usage and large investments, are a veritable gold mine of taxation revenue. It shall never be said of me that I was slow to put the needs of the community first, and to this end I pledge that no opportunity to fill the public coffers will be overlooked, be it through encouragement of high rise apartments or any other means. I am being entirely frank in revealing my personal thoughts on this problem. Let no voter at the polls be in doubt as to my stand.

Clearly Painted

"Then there is the sign and poster situation. Here I am firmly against signs. There must be no attempt by entrenched interests to defile the scenic values of our community for their own gain. The people's welfare is paramount. But at the same time, let there be no undue interference with that free enterprise system which we all revere and uphold, and which is continually menaced by the intrusion of governments into fields in which they do not belong.

"I am convinced that this whole problem of unsightly commercial signs can be permanently solved by the erection of signs in every conceivable location by the government—signs announcing that no signs will be allowed. In this way all elements of the community will be satisfied. As your representative, if elected, I shall certainly see that a policy of signs, or to put it another way, no signs, is faithfully carried out.

"We need more public buildings, my friends. We need auditoriums, council halls, recreation centres, civic theatres, convention halls, and similar structures. I shall support all such projects. But I shall support them in such a way that the interests of the people shall be ever foremost, and where that interest is threatened you will never find me urging any half-baked plans for buildings here and buildings there in a reckless disregard for the expense which must be borne by the people. You may depend on me for this.

"I have told you enough, I'm sure, to prove to you that I am a man of action, of independent thought, of personal initiative, yet not one who will rush into ventures without due consideration, or swing off on a tangent irrespective of the ideas of others, or neglect that co-operation which is the secret of community progress.

"Elect me, my friends, and you will find me leading well out in front, as shoulder to shoulder, together we march boldly forward to the status quo. I thank you."

NO ROYAL ROAD TO WISDOM

Science is indeed a remarkable and productive way of thinking. Since the man who contributes to scientific knowledge today does so by standing on the shoulders of his scientific predecessor of yesterday there is some excuse for the assertion that only in science has progress any definite meaning. Just the same, although a scientist may accumulate knowledge, wisdom is as difficult for him to acquire as for anyone else.

Overheated Economy

By STUART GRIFFIN, from Tokyo

A NEW word has crept, almost unnoticed, into the daily vocabulary of Japan. The Japanese hitherto have been content to see production rise, industry boom, and prosperity reflected in a soaring stock market, generous company dividends, fat bonuses to labor, and the highest standard of living this once-poor nation has ever known.

Suddenly the phrase on every lip is keizai kanetsu—overheated economy. Economists have suddenly decided that progress and prosperity through production and expansion has its flaws, that it could be an infected Achilles' heel in the ambitious Ikeda program to double the national income by 1970.

Japan's exports are not off, exactly, but down from what experts had predicted. Imports, on the other hand, are up, in support of industries splurging happily to modernize, build and expand. Foreign reserves have dipped and are still dipping. The international payments balance has deteriorated and a trade gap plainly yawns.

The newspapers borrowed the economists' phrases. A buildup was essential if Japan was to reach its 1970 goal of a doubled national income, but the over-producing industrial drive was putting the economy under a strain.

A slow-down was indicated. As one expert put it, "it's time we took the marmot out of the motor."

The government twice raised official bank discount rates to discourage easy bank borrowings by industries hungry for expansion. It told industry to proceed more gradually with three and five year plans to blow in more furnaces, build new shipways, install new machines, reclaim more land, and construct new mills, factories, shops and yards.

Banks were instructed to cut back 10 per cent on funds earmarked as loans to industries with expansion schedules.

Big Question

The big question is what should next year's gross national product rate be, in the light of original expectations of 11 per cent for the 1961-62 Japanese fiscal year that ends next March 31?

The international trade and industry ministry, proponent of expanded economy, calls eight per cent "realistic." This is a three to four per cent drop from earlier expectations.

The economic planning agency, author of the Ikeda income-doubling scheme, scales down from its original 10.5 to a more modest six per cent.

The ultra-cautious ministry of finance and the Bank of Japan come out for a growth of no more than six per cent. They predict even less for 1962-63—between three and four per cent.

The GNP for 1960-61, they argue, rose by 13 per cent over 1959-60, and, though down from the phenomenal 18 per cent recorded for 1958-59, was still 3.5 per cent higher than at first expected.

Japan must, they cry, build up its industry to western standards to match the promised trade and exchange liberalization in line with general world trends. How else to match the flood of quality imports expected after imports are 90 per cent liberalized after October 1962?

Leaders point out that every large concern has expansion plans either in blueprint or in works stages. Iron-steel mills envision a 45 per cent growth by 1970. Shipyards are enlarging to accommodate tonnage of up to 100,000 deadweight. Vast tracts of land are being reclaimed from the sea—future sites of installations in petrochemical, chemical, petroleum, iron-steel, gas, and metal-processing industries. Harbors are being dredged, ports enlarged to permit unloading amounts of raw materials that will augment production for swelling domestic and foreign markets alike.

Trim Plans

How can we trim plans already too far advanced, ask industrial captains? How can we curb or scrap schemes to build and enlarge, so necessary to meet liberalization's import aftermath head-on? How can we halt programs to modernize or streamline and bring costs down—unless we wish to court disaster?

Government has its reply and industry refuses to heed obvious danger signs. Imports rise far ahead of exports as industry produces for a domestic, not a foreign market. Prices mount to where Japan prices herself from international markets and then must be cut sacrificially too quickly to the point that foreign areas are flooded and complain, through restrictions, against Japan's goods' influx.

Politicking increases as the pressure is put on the government and as the government, in turn, tries to put the pressure on industry.

Fallout Shelters: 'Insurance Which We Could Never Forgive Ourselves for Foregoing'

By Walter Lippmann, from Washington

THE fear and bewilderment which enshroud the business of fallout shelters are threatening to corrupt the morale of our people.

The evil comes from telling them that they are in danger of being exterminated, and that they can and should save themselves separately, each family for itself, and the devil take the hindmost. This is the way to breed panic.

It is like telling passengers of a ship that the ship may sink and that, while there are not enough life preservers for everyone, each man should try to make one for himself.

Let us find out if we can how we got into this mess and how we can get out of it.

was quite possible by the end of December.

It was in this context that the President told the people that in the coming months he would let every citizen know what steps he could "take without delay to protect his family in case of attack."

It was a very bad mistake to tie together the six months deadline about Berlin with a call for immediate action to each citizen to save his family. For the fact is that no serious program of fallout shelters can conceivably be carried out in six months by private initiative. But being told to try it has frightened people without doing anything to save them.

That the impression conveyed by the address of July 25 was a mistake is evident from the fact that only two months earlier, in the President's Special Message of May 25, he had expounded the concept of civil defence coolly, clearly, and exactly. In view of the state of mind which now prevails in the country, what he said then is worth quoting at length.

"This Administration has been looking very hard at exactly what civil defence can and cannot do. It cannot be obtained cheaply. It cannot give an assurance of blast protection that will be proof against surprise attack or guaranteed against obsolescence or destruction. And it cannot deter a nuclear attack.

"We will deter an enemy from making a nuclear attack only if our retaliatory power is so strong and so invulnerable that he knows he would be destroyed by our response. If we have that strength, civil defence is not needed to deter an attack. If we should ever lack it, civil defence would not be an adequate substitute.

"But this deterrent concept assumes rational calculations by rational men. And the history of this planet is sufficient to remind us of the possibilities of an irrational attack, a miscalculation, an accidental war which cannot be either foreseen or deterred. The nature of modern warfare heightens these possibilities.

"It is on this basis that civil defence can readily be justified—as insurance for the civilian population in the event of such a miscalculation. It is insurance we trust will never be needed—but insurance which we could never forgive ourselves for foregoing in the event of catastrophe.

"Once the validity of this concept is recognized, there is no point in delaying the initiation of a nationwide long-range program of identifying present fallout shelter capacity and providing shelter in new and existing structures.

"Such a program would protect millions of people against the hazards of radioactive fallout in the event of a large-scale nuclear attack. To assure effective use of these shelters, additional measures will be required for warning, training, radiological monitoring, and stockpiling of food and medicines. And effective performance of the entire program requires not only new legislative authority and more funds, but also sound organizational arrangements."

The crucial difference between May 25 and July 25 is this: Before this encounter with Khrushchev in Vienna, the President saw clearly and said clearly that a serious shelter policy would have to be "a long-range program," that it could not be cheap, and that it would require new planning and new organization.

On July 25 he gave the impression, though his exact words do not say so, that a shelter program could be carried out as an emergency measure against the six months ultimatum.

It is the treatment of the policy on shelters as an emergency measure which has caused all the trouble. Why this policy as an emergency measure was decided upon between the month of June and the last week of July is a question we shall have to leave to the historians.

What we have to do now, however, is clear enough. We have to return to the policy and doctrine of the message of May 25, and the sooner this is done, the better.

The message of May 25 lays down two propositions. The first is that our only true defence against nuclear attack is to maintain at all costs a retaliatory power "so strong and so invulnerable" that an aggressor would be destroyed even if he made the first strike.

The second proposition is that since first proposition "assumes rational calculations by rational men," we have to protect ourselves also against irrational calculations by irrational men. It is against this, not against the Berlin crisis and not against deliberate aggression but against irrationality, that we should build shelters in a long-range program.

This second proposition can usefully, I think, be developed somewhat further. The main danger of an irrational war is that one or the other of the nuclear powers will find itself in a dead-end street from which there is no exit except by surrender or mutual suicide.

One of the nuclear powers could manoeuvre the other nuclear power into a position that amounts to intolerable provocation. Or one of the nuclear powers could manoeuvre itself into the dead-end street by making impossible demands from which it was unable to recede without humiliating loss of face.

These are the situations which could easily enough, even in a democracy, engender irrational actions by mass pressures of people who had lost their heads.

It is the business of diplomacy to avoid getting into and to avoid getting the other side into the dead-end street. This is the nuclear age, and in the nuclear age war cannot be employed by diplomacy as an instrument of national policy.

Until the nuclear age, which began only about ten years ago, a government could, as George Washington said, "choose peace or war, as our interest guided by justice, shall counsel." This is no longer possible as between nuclear powers.

They cannot choose war, and therefore the national interest has to be promoted and defended by other means. As between contending nuclear powers, nuclear weapons can be used only to neutralize other nuclear weapons.

On Them It Looks Good?

I WAS sitting with the lady of our house before the fire, going through the newspaper. With a perfectly straight face I read aloud a United Press-International item from Mexico City. It said that President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes of Guatemala had reportedly instructed wives of his cabinet ministers to wear black negligees at night.

Still with a perfectly straight face I looked up at the lady of our house. With an equally straight face she looked right back.

I said "Hmmm."
She said "Ha."

Had I left it at that I think I would have had one of those daintily-enigmatic vignettes like "Which came out, the lady or the tiger?"

Instead, I asked: "Say, what became of that suit of heavy red silk cocktail pyjamas I got you for Christmas back when they were wearing cocktail pyjamas?"

"That," she said, "is packed in a box in the clothes cupboard with a few other things I no longer wear. You see? No cocktail, no cocktail pyjamas. Simple, isn't it?"

It wasn't quite that simple.

"It's a little difficult," continued the lady of our house, "to know exactly what a person should wear. Do you remember a couple of weeks ago telling me that I ought to buy a good, loose sweat shirt and a good loose pair of sweat pants and a pair of ski socks with felt soles? According to you that would be about as comfortable an outfit as I could get for lounging in the evening, watching TV, reading or knitting."

Stott

"Now what do you want? Would you like me to look like a kid loafing around after a track workout? Or do you think you'd like a Hollywood version of a glamour girl?"

"If you want glamour, let me remind you of a couple of disadvantages in the lounging pyjamas. In the first place they were short, short-sleeved. I used to get goose-pimples from the shoulder to the wrist when I wore them. In the second place, I got eternally tired of you suggesting I ought to sew another button on them higher up to the collar. When company came in, you looked so worried I couldn't feel at ease."

"I suppose I could get a sweat suit and wear it under the pyjamas. That way I'd be warm and I'd certainly look modest. It'd make quite an effect, wouldn't it?"

"Funny thing about men. They get all bright-eyed and sparkly around the good-looking girl who wears the daring clothes. If their wives edge gently into similar outfits, all the sparkle goes like last week's uncorked Seven-Up. How come?"

"No, don't tell me. I know."

"Just what would you have done if I had let you buy me that Bikini you kept saying I ought to have when we were on our trip last year? You sure were the bold soul when I told you I didn't want it, weren't you?"

"Now about that piece you read in the paper. Maybe if you decided to take me on a tour to Guatemala, I might get a conservative sort of black negligee. Still, they're ordered only for the wives of Guatemala ministers, and there's something a bit impermanent about Guatemala ministers, isn't there?"

I said "Hmmm."

Russ Press Finland Harder

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union warned Finland Thursday it considers the threat of West German aggression even worse now than it did Oct. 30 when it asked Helsinki for joint defence consultations.

Western diplomats wondered whether this was intended as a Soviet reply to Tuesday's announcement by President Urho Kekkonen of early parliamentary elections. In calling for elections in February, five months ahead of schedule, Kekkonen said international tensions demanded decisions that could not wait for a summer vote.

First Deputy Foreign Minister Vassili Kuznetsov told Finnish Ambassador Euro Wuori the Soviet Union believes danger in northern Europe has worsened because of:

1. The visit of West German Defence Minister Franz Joseph Strauss to Oslo and his negotiations with Norway on military co-operation.
2. The imminent start of North Atlantic Treaty Organization manoeuvres off the Danish Baltic islands.
3. Reports in Danish newspapers that a Danish-West German agreement on a joint command would soon be completed.

Gracie Gets Brass Bucket

LONDON—Gracie Fields, over here from her Capri home to make one of her now infrequent TV appearances, has been awarded the BBC's "Order of the Brass Bucket."

This "distinction" was conferred upon her as one of the originals of BBC Television, now celebrating its 25th anniversary. She did her first radio broadcast in 1928 and was one of the first on the little screen when the BBC introduced television to the world in 1936.

The Order of the Brass Bucket is hardly as official as Hollywood's Oscars. It originated a mere three years ago when comedian Victor Borge did a show at the BBC's then brand new $30,000,000 Television Centre at White City.

Asked if he would like a memento of the occasion, he said he would like nothing better than one of the ashtrays dotted around the corridors of the centre for performers to get rid of their cigarettes before going into the studios.

No ordinary ashtrays, they are the old-

Reyburn

English pot-bellied buckets of the type that American and Canadian tourists snap up at antique shops here at around $15 each.

Since then the BBC has been awarding a Brass Bucket to anyone to whom they feel kindly disposed, and for our Gracie it's yet another honor to add to her long list, ranging from the Freedom of her native Rochdale, Lancs., to the CBE awarded to her by George VI in 1938.

Sixty-three now, she's had a long stint. She made her debut as a vocalist in a movie theatre back there in Rochdale in 1906!

Another old-timer, author Somerset Maugham, 88, has just opened a $14,500 library he presented to his old school, King's School, Canterbury. Housed there will be thousands of books from his own library at his villa in the south of France.

Said Maugham to the boys: "The books I give you are the work and the materials of the author I have been. When I look back on my long life I recognize that reading has been the most enduring thing that life has offered me."

Notices noticed—(1) In a Chelsea pub: "Drink now, and avoid the Christmas rush." (2) Chalked on a Holborn wall: "Contribute to Mental Health—or I'll throttle you."

For Protection, Not Coddling

Cold frames need particular attention when the weather changes rapidly from mild, overcast with rain to clear, sunny, with frost at night.

On the mild, cloudy or rainy days and nights the cold frame covers should be raised on convenient supports to permit all possible air to circulate through the plants and yet keep out the rain.

On bright, sunny days the covers should be removed entirely after the air has warmed in the morning and before the temperature within reaches higher than 45 degrees. When a clear night seems evident, the covers should be replaced and closed tightly by the time the sun leaves the frame, so that a little of the daytime warmth is trapped.

Watering of some plants will be necessary in a frame from which rain is excluded. Do this early in the day, giving only the amount required to the plants which need it, and avoid spilling water unnecessarily.

Many plants already in frame storage are still shedding their leaves. This debris should be collected and removed regularly to prevent an accumulation of moulding vegetation.

The dryer the atmosphere can be kept the more successful will be the operation of the frame, and a dry air will retain more heat and provide better conditions on frosty nights.

DON'T NEGLECT THEM
Although the plants are out of sight they must not be forgotten, and it is wise to make it a rule to visit the frame every morning by 9 and every afternoon about 4.

Remember that the plants are only in the frame to protect them from adverse conditions, not for coddling. Also that slugs love the protection a frame affords and the food the plants provide. Use slug bait freely if their presence is noticed.

STUDENTS FLEE BOMB THREAT

BRANTFORD (CP)—Llewellyn Depew, 19-year-old student at Brantford Collegiate Institute, was charged Thursday night with public mischief in connection with a bomb scare that resulted in the evacuation of the city's 13,000 school children.

An anonymous caller telephoned police at noon and said "a school will be blown up in 40 minutes."

Because he didn't name the school, pupils were removed from all the city's 36 schools in a driving rainstorm.

OPTIMISTS EXTEND HAND ..... IN PAT ON THE BACK

To 'Teen-Agers—God Bless 'Em

1370 Lang

A Grade 12 student attending Victoria High School, Mary hopes to attend Victoria University and follow a career in education. She prefers English and home economics courses, and is president of school Home Ec. Club. Her activities include sports, cheer-leading and Girl Guides.

More than 80,000 members of some 2,000 Optimist clubs across this continent are extending a pat on the back to millions of teen-agers this week.

They have designated it International Youth Appreciation Week with the object of bringing home to the public an awareness that most juveniles are not delinquents.

The observance in Canada and the U.S. began with a pilot project in 1937 and has grown to include every Optimist Club.

In Victoria, club members have selected 10 examples of teen-agers, shown in accompanying photos, who are too busy growing up and participating in society to get into trouble. The 10 were guests at the club's weekly luncheon Thursday in the Yarrow Building.

"We want to publicize the fact that 95 per cent of all teen-agers are solid types and good citizens," said Greater Victoria Optimist Club member Paul Mantell. "Those who become delinquents only account for about 5 per cent and even then we should remember that basically they often do it just to gain recognition."

"If we continue to publicize the good citizenship of these boys each year," said club president Joseph McBride, "we stand a good chance of increasing the 95 per cent."

Similar programs during the week are being undertaken by the Oak Bay and evening Optimist clubs.

The optimists' youthful guests Thursday were accompanied by their fathers and introduced to the club by YAW chairman Ronald Douglas.

They were selected from "close to 400" names submitted to the club by groups and individuals.

GALLUP POLL SHOCK FOR TORIES

Liberals Leading in Ontario

By TOM GOULD
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Liberals have pulled well ahead of the Conservatives in the key province of Ontario in the Gallup poll's national public opinion sampling.

The news came as something of a shock to the capital, where politicians and pundits watch the fluctuations of the Gallup poll as most Canadians watch the football scores.

There is little doubt that the Liberals would win an election if it were to be held now.

They have been well ahead in Quebec for over a year now, and the big breakthrough in Ontario is all they need to assure their victory when Prime Minister Diefenbaker calls the next vote.

He hasn't given any hints so far, but most politicians expect the election to be held in June of next year, when the Conservatives will have had four years in office.

There are 85 federal seats in Ontario, and 75 in Quebec out of a total of 265.

On the national level, the Liberals lead 43 per cent to 37 per cent. Tory strength in the maritimes and the west brings up the average. But in the two key provinces, the Liberals are well in the lead. In Quebec, according to the poll, 50 per cent of the voters favor the Liberals today, 33 per cent the Conservatives.

In Ontario, the Liberals lead by 47 per cent to 39 per cent. At the time of the last poll, in September, the Ontario figures were: Liberals 44, Conservatives 41.

In the west, the Liberals are still behind: Tories 38 per cent, Liberals 30 per cent.

The new democratic party isn't picking up strength, according to the poll. It still commands 12 per cent of the vote. The NDP had 12 per cent in September, and 11 per cent in January. The poll shows many voters are undecided how they will vote.

In Ontario, the undecided total 32 per cent of those polled. In Quebec the figure is 27 per cent, and in the west 26 per cent.

Certain features illustrated are optional at extra cost.

1 MERCURY COMET —the compact Mercury. Built for the family who wants a compact car that doesn't look it or act it. The new Comet is a Mercury, with fine car styling unsurpassed among compacts. New rear deck with dual tail-lights provides a flair unique in Comet's price class. And Comet's look of success hasn't gone to its price. Comet still only looks expensive.

Special Features:

Choice of new 85 hp and 101 hp "six" engines. Automatic or manual transmission.
Up to 33 miles per gallon on regular gas. Oil change cycle extended up to 6,000 miles.
New coolant lasts up to 30,000 miles.
Six people ride in comfort.
Vacation planned "big car" trunk.
9 models, including Comet's new personal compact car the S-22 with bucket seats.

2 MERCURY METEOR —the middle sized Mercury. This car is so new its unveiling will not take place until November 30. But it is so exciting, that you should know about it right now. Meteor carries on a famous Canadian name, but that's where past resemblance ends. This totally new automobile is tailored for the man who wants a bigger car than a compact—but not quite as big as a big car. Meteor is the heart of the new Mercury line.

Special Features:

Choice of new 145-hp Bantam V-8 or 101 hp "six" engines.
Complete package of self-servicing features: Oil change cycle extended up to 6,000 miles; chassis lubrications and coolant last up to 30,000 miles; self-adjusting brakes.
Luxurious 6 passenger interior.
Cushion-Link suspension for big-car ride.

3 MERCURY MONTEREY —the big Mercury. If you think big, Monterey is sized for you. Monterey is big where it counts—in comfort, in performance, in value. Combine its sofa wide seats with its elegant interior decor—and 6 people stretch out in style. The 1962 Mercury Monterey has all it takes—to take you places in a big way.

Special Features:

Gangland Slaying

CHICAGO (UPI)—A plumber with a long record as a burglar was fatally shot-gunned in front of his home Thursday, the 16th gangland-style assassination in Chicago in a year and eighth in the area in a week.

Bonus payments for the land totalled $4,027,562; rentals brought in $50,102 more, and fees netted another $4,325.

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan, who conducted the auction at his office, said the biggest bonus was $851,107 paid by Sinclair Canada Oil Co. and Canada Southern Petroleum Ltd. for a 13,163-acre drilling reservation near Boundary Lake.

Pure Oil Co. put up the next biggest sum, $565,000, for 19,407 acres near Fort Nelson.

POWER RATE CUTS HINGE ON BCP SUIT

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's electrical power users will suffer if the province is forced to pay greater compensation for its takeover of the B.C. Electric, Dr. Gordon Shrum said Thursday.

The chairman of the giant utility, which the government took over under special legislation Aug. 1, said profits diverted to make a bigger payoff to BCE shareholders would reduce the rate reductions expectable next spring.

Dr. Shrum was commenting in an interview on the move by B.C. Power Corporation, former holder of all BCE common shares, to have the Provincial Supreme Court declare the takeover act invalid. BCE also is seeking a flat from the government for the right to sue for $225,000,000 instead of $111,000,000 it received for BCE.

'Let's Get Organized' Says Lane

Call for an organized effort to attract Seattle Century 21 visitors to Victoria next year was issued by well-known local tourist figure Sam Lane on his return from a meeting of the Washington Motor Hotel Association in Seattle Thursday.

Mr. Lane, owner of the Old England Inn, said motel and hotel owners as far south as Oregon are bidding for overflow accommodation from the fair.

If Victoria tourist interests expected to get some of the Seattle visitors to come to cen-ennial celebrations here, Mr. Lane warned, they must organize their efforts as the Americans are doing.

He urged the tourist industry to give more help to Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau commissioner William Hawkins.

"He is doing a great job and needs all the financial support he can get," he said.

As a first step toward organizing for next year, Mr. Lane suggested a survey of all accommodation in the Greater Victoria area should be made.

one voyage a year!

Mr. Lemon Hart's fine rums are remarkably well seasoned travellers. After careful distilling in the West Indies they are sent to Britain for a lengthy visit. There they rest in wooden casks absorbing the moist soft air of that sea-girt island... maturing slowly, gracefully, and naturally. By the time they're perfectly blended, bottled and sent to Canada they're mature, light-hearted rums full of delightful flavour, perfectly at ease in any company.

Parker Likes Winnipeg Over Calgary in Final

JACKIE WILL TELL US ABOUT GRID PLAYOFFS

The best football player in western Canada—some say the best in the east and the west—today outlines for Victoria Times readers his thoughts on the Western Conference final between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders.

Jackie Parker, three-time winner of the Schenley Cup, awarded annually to Canada's most outstanding player, will write a series of articles on the Calgary-Winnipeg playoff and later the Grey Cup.

In today's article, Jackie calls Winnipeg to defeat Calgary but points out that the Cowboys could give Bud Grant's team some difficulty with their dazzling spread formation.

'The Voice' Still Has That Scoring Touch

Don't worry about 'The Voice'—he can still put the puck in the net.

Idle the last 23 months—except for a meaningless two-game token try last year—Eddie "The Voice" Dorohoy returned to the Western Hockey League Thursday night with Los Angeles Blades.

He proved the layoff hardly diminished his ability to score. He set up the tying goal and then scored the winner in overtime as the Blades tripped the hot Edmonton Flyers 4-3 before 4,806 at Los Angeles.

FIRST GAME

The game and the goal were firsts for Dorohoy since Los Angeles signed him to a conditional contract. The condition: has his leg healed sufficiently to permit him to travel with his old clan, fitness and fooling, WHL goalkeepers?

Los Angeles got its answer at 7:17 of the overtime period. Closing in with Bill Burega and Dan Belisle, Dorohoy boomed the puck past Hank Bassen, replacing the injured Dennis Riggins.

Dorohoy officially became LA property only hours before the game. He was acquired in a trade for defenceman Les Hunt, sent to Vancouver for the rest of the season. Hunt was the man who collided with Dorohoy in December, 1959, sending him crashing to the ice with a fractured ankle.

The victory moved Los Angeles out of the southern division cellar, a point ahead of San Francisco Seals. It also proved costly to Edmonton. The Flyers lost high-scoring forward Len Lundie for several weeks when he crashed into the LA goal and came out with a dislocated hip.

Without Lundie the Flyers move into San Francisco to night to help Seals christen the 12,900-seat Cow Palace. Returning to the WHL after an 11-year absence, the Seals won four and lost 10 on a long and difficult road trip while a $225,000 ice plant was being installed in the Cow Palace.

Tacoma Pro Shares Lead

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—Doug Sanders, Dave Marr and an unknown pro—Ken Still of Tacoma, Wash.—fired 67s to share the lead after the first 18 holes of the $15,000 Cajun Classic golf tournament Thursday.

Lionel Hebert was one stroke back with a 34-34—68. The 130 pros were to play 18 more holes today before the cutoff of the top 60 players for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

By JACKIE PARKER
(Edmonton Quarterback)

EDMONTON—Like just about everybody else in the west, I'm calling Winnipeg Blue Bombers to defeat Calgary Stampeders and go to the Grey Cup game in Toronto.

But, by the same token, Bud Grant and company would be downright foolish to underestimate those Cowboys—who have plenty of that old college spirit and are just beginning to flex their muscles.

Calgary, of course, killed us with their spread formation—a brain wave of coach Bobby Dadds just before the semifinals opened. In this formation quarterback Eagle Day is particularly dangerous and he has some good receivers in Gene Filipski, big Ernie Warlick and Bruce Claridge.

Then Day can be expected to pound Earl Lunsford through the middle enough times to keep the defences honest and try, notice I say try, to get fleet-footed Ed Buchanan loose on the outside.

CLASH OF LINES
Lunsford is hard to stop when he's running low. His exceptional balance gives him something no coach can instill in any player.

Still if Calgary gives Winnipeg any serious trouble... it will be the spread formation that does it.

It should also be interesting to watch Blue Bombers' fearsome offence line tangle with Calgary's defensive line three times back to back. Don Luzzi, Tony Pajacowski and friends played probably their games of the season against us and aren't likely to be impressed with Frank Rigney, Cornell Piper and playmates.

But Winnipeg has by far the best blocking offensive line in the country and I'll agree with those who insist Piper is probably the finest homebrew lineman around.

RATES LEWIS HIGH

Rigney pulls out and throws tremendous blocks. His play makes life a lot easier for Leo Lewis, James, Jauch and Shepard.

And speaking of Lewis, I'd like to mention I regard him the top halfback in the west. He has everything—strength, speed, savvy and good hands. When they called him the "Lincoln Locomotive" they hit the nail on the head.

Big Charlie, if he's healthy, can get you those precious short yards and you have to admire Jauch's hustle. If he was a little bigger he would be a dandy, there's no doubt about it.

James is the reliable old pro: Capable of breaking any game wide open.

That brings us around to Ken Ploen, a fine quarterback and outstanding defensive ball player. Ken's been criticized in the past but he gets the job done... and what more can a coach ask?

On the backfields, I give the edge to Winnipeg and it is the same story up front. Calgary has some individual stars but not nearly the depth to handle the likes of Steve Patrick, Herb Gray, Rigney, Wright, Ed Kotowich, George Druxman and all.

SLICK ENDS

The Winnipeg ends, too, I'd place a notch higher than their Calgary counterparts. Funston and Pitts can catch everything thrown their way and both can take the heavy slogging that invariably takes place in the blue-chip playoff battles.

Calgary's defence, despite the way it stopped us, can not stand up with Winnipeg's—especially in the linebacking department, where Gordie Rowland, Dave Burkholder and Jack Delveaux are in a class by themselves.

I'd like to have these guys on my side any day of the week. I'd add my old Edmonton pal Don Stephenson as the fourth man and defy anybody to run against us.

So that's the way it looks like from my seat in the stands. Calgary capable of moving the ball—but not getting it long enough to do any real damage.

Temple Traded

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Indians traded second baseman John Temple to Baltimore Orioles Thursday for catcher Harry Chitt and two other players to be named by Dec. 15.

They took the senior title and the combined junior-senior crown. Junior events are carded tonight and senior events will be staged Saturday.

Fuller Ready With Cheque Mr. D'Amato

BOSTON (AP)—Peter Fuller, millionaire manager of challenger Tom McNeely, said Thursday he would soon make the $100,000 bank deposit demanded by heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson's manager Gus D'Amato.

Fuller denied he had not lived up to the contract for the scheduled heavyweight title fight Dec. 4 at Toronto, as D'Amato has charged.

"I have received the okay on the contract from the Toronto Boxing Commission," Fuller said. "The money will be forthcoming under the terms of the contract, 10 days from the date of that approval. The date of the okay was Nov. 13 which gives me until Nov. 22."

"In actuality I feel I will come up with the money this coming Monday. I'm entirely within the agreement I made with D'Amato."

The presters defeated the Collegians 3-0 Thursday in an exhibition game at Victoria High.

CBC Prepares New TV Plan

TORONTO (CP)—A spokesman for the CBC said Thursday the corporation is preparing a new proposal dealing with television of Eastern and Western Canadian football playoffs for consideration by Jake Gaudaur, TV chairman of the Eastern Football Conference.

Gaudaur had asked the CBC to decide by noon Thursday whether it would accept his plan for joint coverage of the decisive playoff games by the CBC and by CTV, the privately-owned network operated by CFTO-TV.

Decisive games involved are the second game of the eastern Canada finals between Toronto Argonauts and the Ticats in Hamilton Nov. 25 and the second and possibly third games of the best-of-three western finals at Winnipeg Nov. 22 and 25.

The CBC holds television rights to western playoff games and CTV holds eastern playoff rights.

TECHNICAL DETAILS

Bob McGill, supervisor of outside broadcasting for the CBC, sent a telegram Thursday to Gaudaur, president and general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, saying investigation of technical details was delaying a reply.

The CBC spokesman said Gaudaur's most recent proposal, made Tuesday, was that the CBC should carry western playoff games on its national TV network and eastern playoff games in western Canada only while CFTO-TV carried the eastern playoff games on its network.

The CBC spokesman said the publicly-owned corporation understood that Gaudaur's previous suggestion, made Monday, was that decisive

TICATS FAVORED

Don't Forget 1962 Playoff

TORONTO (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats are favored to win the Eastern Football Conference final against Toronto Argonauts.

The bookmakers quote the Ticats as one-point favorites in the opening game of the two-game, total-points series here Sunday. They're six-point favorites on the road.

But the fans contemplating heavy wagering might first ponder some history.

The last time these two clubs met in the eastern final was in 1952. The Tiger-Cats were favored even more heavily that time.

Toronto's coach was Frank Clair, now the incumbent in Ottawa. Hamilton's leader was Carl Voyles, since departed from Canadian football.

TOOK BIG LEAD

It had been a big year for the Ticats. In those days of the 12-game schedule they had won three, lost two and tied one to finish first for the third successive season, although they had yet to see Grey Cup action.

Hamilton elected to play the first game at home and lost, to the amazement of everyone, 22-6. The Argos took what appeared to be an insurmountable 16-point bulge into the second and supposedly deciding game.

INDIGNANT CATS WIN

The indignant Ticats marched into muddy Varsity Stadium the following week, beat Toronto 27-11 and tied up the round 33-33.

The plan was for a 20-minute overtime but in face of impending darkness on that rainy afternoon, officials abandoned the idea and set up a third game. Toronto won the toss for the home field.

The Ticats had a narrow lead until the last five minutes. Then quarterback Nobby Wirkowski, now on the coaching staff, uncorked a 36-

He will receive the Dr. Beattie Martin trophy.

The second-place choice was Stampeder middle guard Larry Anderson. Third place went to another Calgary player, linebacker John McMurty.

ASSAULT CHARGES LAID

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—Three Muskegon hockey players were free on bond today after pleading innocent in municipal court here to charges of assault and battery.

The three, Bryan McLean, Larry Lund and Ron Stephenson, were arrested Wednesday night after a St. Paul policeman was struck on the head with a hockey stick during the Muskegon-St. Paul game here.

PLAYERS PLEAD INNOCENT

The policeman, James Mahoney, was taken to hospital where several stitches were required to close the wound. Mahoney said Stephenson wielded the stick that hit him during the riot.

Sports writer Bob Schabert of the St. Paul Pioneer Press suffered an injured left ankle when a Muskegon player stepped on him during the fracas. Detective Joseph Sherin had his right knee skinned by a skate.

McLay, Lund and Stephenson were placed under arrest but allowed to finish the game—which St. Paul won, 8-1.

Municipal Judge E. Clifford Jones has allowed them to remain free on $100 bond each. They were told to reappear in court here Dec. 28.

Fraud Charge Brings Man Year In Jail

Fred Basanta, no fixed address, was jailed a year by Magistrate William Ostler in Saanich police court Thursday on a charge of obtaining goods by false pretences.

Detective Sergeant Joe Armstrong said Basanta had telephoned a Royal Oak hardware store June 21 and ordered paints and brushes. He said he would send someone for them.

He gave an address on Dyar Road. Shortly after the accused arrived at the store with a note asking for goods to a total value of $43.98. They were given to him.

Subsequent enquiries revealed he did not live at the address mentioned and that he could not be located. The goods were not recovered.

Basanta pleaded guilty.

30 Days In Jail For Third Charge

A third conviction for driving while under suspension brought a 30-day prison sentence for Frank Carlow, 2067 Selwyn, in Saanich police court Thursday.

He had pleaded guilty.

Defence counsel James Proudfoot told Magistrate J. A. Byers that Carlow had already spent 20 days in custody and as a result would almost certainly lose his contracting business.

Carlow also was fined $25 for using another person's driving licence.

Fishermen Ask Full Share In Unemployment Benefits

OTTAWA (CP)—The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.) today called for "full integration" of fishermen into an expanded unemployment insurance plan.

In a brief to the Gill committee of inquiry on unemployment insurance, the 6,500-member union rejected claims that the inclusion of fishermen is an abuse against the principle of the unemployment insurance fund.

The brief charged that fishermen were being turned into a "convenient scapegoat" to obscure the real causes of the shrinking unemployment insurance fund—high unemployment.

The union, which represents fishermen on the West Coast, contended that statistics showing that fishermen collected $9 from the fund for each $1 contributed are "spurious."

It argued that such figures do not show contributions made by fishermen who do other work, and pay into the fund in these other occupations.

SEVERAL OBJECT

Fishermen were included in the coverage of the Unemployment Insurance Act in 1957. The fact that they have collected more benefits than they have contributed to the fund has been cited by several organizations as a drain on the fund.

The brief, presented by the union's welfare officer, William Rigby of Vancouver, called for an expanded program of benefits and assistance for jobless workers and rejected the suggestion that the plan can be made actuarially sound.

"Unemployment benefits, payments, assistance, or whatever term one may wish to use are in the nature of penalties payable by a society that permits the social malady of unemployment in its midst," said Mr. Rigby.

He said the ideal plan should be financed through income taxes in the same way as old age pensions.

But under the present structure, he recommended a scheme that would involve payment by workers through payroll deductions as a percentage of their wage.

Employers would contribute to the fund "in a fashion to promote an understanding of the true social costs involved in reducing employment."

The "government's share would be through income tax on all persons who do not pay into the fund directly."

PROTESTANT COUPLE KEEP RC BABY

Religious Bar to Adoption Upset by Ontario Judge

SOUTH RIVER, Ont. (CP)—When Oliver Lamb and his wife Joan welcomed a 23-day-old infant into their large home in this village 35 miles south of North Bay, they unwittingly set the scene for one of Ontario's most historical court decisions.

All they knew at the time was that the baby, Joseph Patrick, had been placed in their home only because no Roman Catholic couple was willing to take him in.

That was in January, 1957. Ten months later the Lambs adopted another boy.

But it wasn't until Thursday that Mrs. Lamb heard her "most wonderful news"—the words she used to describe a written judgment by Judge Walter Little of Parry Sound.

Judge Little, in a precedent-setting ruling, allowed the Lambs to adopt Joey, and in so doing declared that Ontario couples need not be of the same religious faith as the child they seek to adopt. He made no ruling as to which faith the child must follow.

Joey, baptized a Roman Catholic a few days after his birth, becomes the son of a couple who both belong to the South River United Church.

TRADITION LACKS BASIS

Ontario's Protestants, Jews and Roman Catholics have always been told they must adopt children of their own religious persuasion despite the fact that the supply of adoptable children in each faith seldom matches the demand from that faith.

But Judge Little ruled the tradition has no basis in law. He found nothing in Ontario's Child Welfare Act "which says that a child born to a Roman Catholic mother and baptized as such may not be adopted by Protestants or vice versa."

As there is no statutory bar to the making of an adoption order on the basis of religion, is there any reason why religion should be an obstacle? "In my view there is not," Judge Little said.

Judge Little said depriving a child of the advantages which adoption would give him "simply because the applicants, though Christian, are of a different denomination would, in my view, be a denial of natural justice."

"If that were the law it would mean that the children might be denied the permanent values which a normal family life can provide, simply because the natural parent who, as in this case, was found to have neglected the child, was of a different religion than those seeking to adopt the child."

NOT 'COMMON SENSE'

"This would be neither common sense nor justice, and in my view was neither contemplated nor intended when the Child Welfare Act was passed. To decide otherwise would be to attach a religious tag to the word love, which its very meaning denies."

Judge Little is a member of the Anglican Church. The Lambs first attempted to adopt Joey in 1959 but were refused permission by the Children's Aid Society of the district of Parry Sound, which had left Joey with them.

Last May the Lambs, learning of the society's intention to place the child in a Roman Catholic foster home applied for a writ of summons to prevent Joey's removal from their home.

A temporary injunction restraining the society, issued by district court, was subsequently dissolved by Mr. Justice D. R. Morand of the Ontario Supreme Court. An appeal launched by the Lambs was adjourned without a date set.

'Child's Rights Denied'

TORONTO (CP)—Ward Markle, director of the Roman Catholic Children's Aid Society of Toronto, Thursday night assailed a court ruling permitting the adoption of a Protestant couple of a child baptized a Roman Catholic at birth.

Mr. Markle said the emotional disturbance involved in the Lamb case does not detract from the fact a child born into the Roman Catholic faith has the right to be reared in that faith.

In his decision the judge made no ruling as to what faith the boy should follow.

RELIGION A RIGHT?

"The rights of children are gradually being recognized in the world today," Mr. Markle said. "The United Nations has drawn up a bill of rights for children and surely a child's religion is one of those rights."

He said Roman Catholics have always considered that the section of Ontario's Child Welfare Act which prohibits Roman Catholic children being placed in Protestant homes by Catholic children's aid societies precludes inter-faith adoptions.

HALLOWEEN 'TREATS' POISONED

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Candy passed out to trick-or-treating youngsters last Halloween was loaded with rat poison, an attorney-general's department report showed Thursday.

The mother of an 11-year-old boy said her son found it in his bag following a night of collecting. He found the candy bitter and investigation showed it had been sliced open and the inside spread with a pale powder.

A report from the attorney-general's crime laboratory, issued today, showed the candy had been spread with alphanaphthylthiourea, a type of rat poison.

There were no other reports of doctored candy.

ALGERIAN PRISONERS

Hunger Strike Breaking Up

PARIS (Reuters) — Cracks appeared in the 17-day hunger strike by imprisoned Algerians today as a Moroccan mission headed home after talks over their status.

In Marseille, officials at one prison said three-quarters of their 200 Moslem prisoners have started eating again while at another prison officials said about 30 had accepted food and others seemed likely to follow. But these represented only a small fraction of the detainees who stopped eating in French prisons Nov. 1 demanding they be accorded the status of political prisoners. Officials say less than 4,000 of the 15,000 detainees are striking while other estimates run as high as 8,000 or more.

A large number of Algerians were understood to be receiving treatment in prison hospitals but there was no official announcement on this.

Demonstrations supporting the strikers were staged Thursday in Moscow, Paris, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, Egypt, Syria, Libya and Morocco.

Death Camp Doctors Go on Trial

MUNSTER (AP) — Three German doctors went on trial here today on charges that they were involved in the killing of thousands of prisoners in the Sachsenhausen wartime concentration camp.

They are Dr. Heinz Baumkoetter, 49, head doctor of the camp between 1942 and 1945, and Dr. Alois Gahrle, 54, and Dr. Otto Adam, 57.

Specifically, Baumkoetter is accused of responsibility for the death of at least 77 prisoners and helping in the selection of 2,000 to 4,000 for execution near the end of the war. The prosecution said he conducted medical experiments with prisoners as guinea pigs.

STRICT LAW ENFORCEMENT

'Pepped Up' Program For Water Safety

By RUSSELL ELMAN OTTAWA (CP) — Police plan stricter law enforcement next summer on Canada's waterways to make cruising safer for the country's half-million licensed small boat owners.

They hope to attain their objective through a pepped-up education program on water safety and by taking advantage of amendments to the Criminal Code passed by Parliament last June.

The amendments, aimed at more effective regulation of power boats and other small craft, went into effect Sept. 1 — too late to have any appreciable effect in the 1961 boating season.

Most significant change is transfer of boating regulation from the federally-administered Canada Shipping Act to the Criminal Code, a federal law whose enforcement is a provincial responsibility.

The main effect, say RCMP officials who in the past assumed almost sole responsibility for water law enforcement, is that now all police departments — provincial and municipal — will share that responsibility.

"We hope that by putting the boating regulations into the Criminal Code, other police forces will become interested and accept their responsibility," said a senior RCMP official.

Stiffer penalties also are provided. Maximum under the Canada Shipping Act was a $500 fine or six months' imprisonment for dangerous operation of a vessel. Under the Criminal Code it's two years for an indictable offence and is left to the magistrate's discretion for summary conviction.

The regulations class as offences impaired and dangerous driving of a boat and failing to remain at the scene of an accident. They also require that two persons be in a boat towing a water skier and forbid water skiing from one hour after sunset until sunrise.

With the exception of Quebec and Ontario, which have their own provincial police forces, the RCMP is the local police force outside the main urban centres in each province.

Patrols Few

The Mounties also operate on a national basis a marine section with a fleet of about 30 craft. Its duties include customs and it works mainly on the chief waterways such as the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes as well as off the West Coast.

"With the existing manpower, it is impossible for us to patrol every lake, river and stream," said the RCMP official. "But we hope as time goes on that we will be able to put out more patrols."

RCMP enforcement policy generally has been geared to educating the public in water safety. This year it distributed 60,000 copies of 48-page pamphlet, "Safety Afloat," published by the transport department.

During 1961 the RCMP made some 20,000 inspections of small craft and, where necessary, issued warnings about equipment deficiencies such as lack of life-jackets. They also checked on licences, issued free by the customs department and required by all craft with motors of 10 horsepower or more.

Detain Boats

In more serious cases of equipment deficiency RCMP may place a boat under detention until the equipment is installed.

Actual prosecutions usually depend on the manner in which a boat is being operated and take into consideration the locale and whether there is danger to the driver, passengers and other craft and swimmers. No complete figures are available for 1961 and no conviction under the Criminal Code has been reported. During 1960 there were about 600 convictions.

The RCMP stressed, however, that the success of its efforts to promote safety depends largely on co-operation from non-police bodies and the public. Assistance is regularly received from fish and game officials.

In Manitoba excellent co-operation was received from boating clubs and municipal authorities, as well as a couple of private companies. In Quebec, yacht clubs have put pressure on members to exercise special care in conforming to water safety regulations.

Erring Girl Expelled, Boy Gets Off Lightly

OXFORD, England (AP) — Oxford University students circulated a petition today protesting the expulsion of a Shropshire lass who was found in bed in her room with her boy friend.

The petition read: "We the undersigned junior members of this university deplore the fact that a girl has been sent down from 'St. Hilda's after three weeks in her first term because she was found in bed with her boy friend. "We deplore, moreover, not only the severity of this penalty, but also the discrepancy in the punishments. The girl was sent down. The boy was rusticated for two weeks."

St. Hilda's is one of Oxford's five colleges for women.

The girl was reported back home with her family in a Shropshire village. Her name and the boy's have been withheld. The Oxford Union the university's all-male debating society, in a unanimous resolution Thursday night called on the authorities to reconsider the expulsion and said private morality is solely the concern of the individual. The resolution also deplored the discrepancy between the girl's punishment and the boy's.

Tibetans Continue Fierce Guerrilla Action

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Chinese jet bombers have killed about 1,000 Tibetan guerrillas fighting to liberate their country from Communist control, it was reported here Thursday.

A statement issued by a representative of the Dalai Lama, the refugee Tibetan leader, said guerrilla activity was continuing despite the air attack and information from refugees indicated bitter warfare in the northeast, west and southeast sectors of the Himalayan country.

The jets went into action in the northeast, where the Chinese had to abandon construction of the Lhasa-Lanchow railroad because of rebel activity, the statement said.

It also said the Chinese had used forced labor to build 5,000 miles of military highway in Tibet and "there are eyewitness accounts of the construction of several airfields at strategic locations."

DEATH FROM FAMINE

Famine was raging in Tibet and many deaths from starvation were reported, it said. All stored grain had been looted by the Chinese and most current produce was consumed by the Chinese either in Tibet or in China.

Peasants were allowed to hold only 16 pounds of grain a head a month. The rest of the harvest was confiscated, it declared.

Bishops Reaffirm Education Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Roman Catholic bishops have declared they remain unanimously opposed to "any form of general federal aid to education that discriminates against children attending non-public schools."

This declaration Thursday was described as a reaffirmation of the bishops' stand last March which was a major factor in the failure of the Kennedy administration's school aid bills to reach the House of Representatives floor for debate in the last session.

Sportsmen Delay Repairing Floats

CHEMAINUS—Members of Chemainus Rod and Gun Club, faced with the prospect of repairing once again their storm-damaged small boat floats, have decided to await federal action on a breakwater before going ahead with the job.

The 10-year fight for a breakwater, led by Chemainus Crofton Chamber of Commerce with support of other groups, so far has ended in failure.

Objective is a rock fill sea-wall which would cost $368,000, and which its backers say would not only protect the $17,000,000 waterfront installations here, but provide shelter for pleasure craft and fishing boats.

Public works department in Ottawa has rejected the proposal because it claims deep-sea ships have no problem in docking in the harbor.

In the past few years Rod and Gun Club members have spent $5,000 and countless man-hours in repairs to their installations, and have found that work done in the spring and summer usually is destroyed in the fall and winter.

The most recent storm ripped away one section of the club's outer float.

First Vote In 4 Years At Parksville

PARKSVILLE—Enough candidates have come forward for municipal posts here to give ratepayers their first chance since 1957 to cast ballots for candidates in an election.

Contestants for two seats on the village commission will be Norman E. Trim, elementary school principal; and incumbents Charles R. Cassford and Arthur Briggs.

Candidates for the post of chairman are W. C. "Mike" Hamilton and Albert J. Lock, chairman in 1959.

NANAIMO—Nanaimo School Board is considering charging parents $5 fee for dental care of their five-year-old children, on the recommendation of Central Health Unit dental consultant Dr. D. C. T. Bullen.

He made the suggestion to a board meeting Wednesday, saying he was surprised no charge had been made in the past.

NANAIMO—Parents of children at Mount Benson School, worried about the youngsters having to cross a 60-mile-per-hour highway, found little comfort in a solution offered by Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi.

Mr. Gagliardi suggested establishment of a school patrol, but a spokesman for the school said the highway would be too dangerous for a patrol by students.

NANAIMO—School trustees were quick to retaliate when a delegation representing auto dealers here claimed school buses bought by the board are luxury vehicles, and could have been provided in Canada.

Mrs. Marion Ricker, board chairman, said the board required 67-passenger buses which are not available in Canada.

"Luxury" mentioned on the buses apparently referred to air brakes.

DUNCAN—Junior Chamber of Commerce officials will meet with RCMP shortly to discuss formation of an auxiliary police force to act in emergencies both with the local RCMP detachment and Cowichan civil defence group.

Plan is to organize a 12-man squad.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Week of Dec. 10-16 has been declared Rotary Courtesy Week in Campbell River.

All residents of the district will be asked to observe special acts of courtesy by any person and to describe the act in a letter of 150 words or less.

Cash prizes will be awarded to those writing the three best letters, and prizes will be presented at the regular Rotary meeting on Dec. 20.

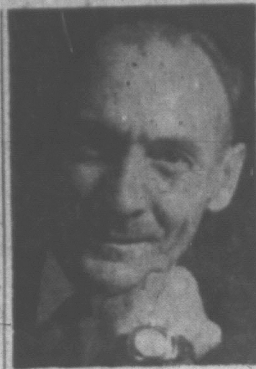

Persons described in the letters will be invited to the luncheon meeting and will receive scrolls of merit.

CAMPBELL RIVER—With nomination day less than two weeks away, no interest has been shown in the contest for three municipal council and two school board seats which must be filled next month.

Village chairman R. D. Janieson and Commissioners Jack Lee and William Hogg have completed two-year terms and won't seek re-election.

School board chairman Cyril Hague and trustee J. C. McDougall, both of whose terms expire this year, are undecided as to whether they will stand again.

Mr. Hague is completing 20 years in school board work.

SALMON and salmon spawning beds will be discussed by Roderick Haig-Brown, noted Campbell River author and conservationist, at dinner meeting of Campbell River Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

Kyquoting Drowning Ruled Accidental

CAMPBELL RIVER—The drowning of Gerald C. McMunn, 21, at Kyquoting Sept. 10 was accidental, a coroner's jury decided here this week.

A Vancouver man employed by a fishing firm, he disappeared while walking between scows. His body was found by a skindiver the next day.

Funeral Held

Private funeral services were scheduled at Chaplin's today for Paul Scoones, member of a well-known Galiano Island family, who died Tuesday in hospital here.

He was born in England, but lived on the island for many years before moving to Victoria three years ago. He made his home at 606 Douglas Street. Survivors include nieces and nephews on Galiano Island.

Schools Bylaw Due In Spring

COURTENAY—Trustees of Courtenay School District 71 indicated this week a building bylaw likely will be put before ratepayers in the spring in order to meet requirements of the next five years.

Most urgent need is in Arden Heights, between Courtenay and Cumberland, where an elementary school would ease pressure on existing schools in the two communities.

Comox elementary school is reported as crowded, and since the design does not permit extension, a new school will be required.

LAST IN 1957
The school district covers that area between Fanny Bay to the south and Black Creek to the north, including Cumberland, Comox, and Hornby and Denman Islands.

Last previous bylaw authorized by ratepayers in the district was a $385,000 program approved in December, 1957.

SPECIAL TIMES SERIES

The Brave, Dubious Adventure

(Article Four)

As President Kennedy launches his attempt to revolutionize the United States' tariff policy he confronts his greatest obstacle not in foreign nations but at home. His struggle during the next year will be fought in the Congress. And the Congress, nominally controlled by his Democratic party, is quite capable of rejecting his plans altogether.

The administration, as already reported in these articles, was split, until a few days ago, on the strategy, though not on the principle of Mr. Kennedy's approach to the Congress. In the end the advisers who had counseled delay for at least a year capitulated in favor of action on trade policy at the congressional session opening in January.

Having thus united his official family, the president told his last press conference that "we have to go to the Congress at a time when we can be most successful. My judgment is that the time to begin is now."

"But as a matter of final decision I think we will have to wait about two or three more weeks. If I had to guess, I would say we go ahead now."

That announcement deeply alarmed some of the president's closest friends in the Congress. The grim parallel between Mr. Kennedy's current political problem and Woodrow Wilson's tragic crusade for the League of Nations is apparent.

at once to anyone who walks from the executive to the legislative end of Pennsylvania Avenue.

At the capitol this reporter was told by men who manage the president's business in the Congress that the outcome of his campaign for an entirely new tariff system must be considered highly doubtful, to say the best of it.

As it showed this year, the Senate is usually prepared to go along with the president but a recalcitrant House of Representatives obstructed some important aspects of his legislative program and will certainly endanger, if it does not veto, his new trade program.

Party Ties Loose

Unfortunately the president has not yet united his supporters in the Congress where party ties are extremely loose by Canadian standards. Some of his strongest lieutenants there are still in favor of delay—not because they oppose his policy but because they fear it may be wrecked by a premature attempt to write it into law.

Like one wing of the administration, they believe that the climate is not ripe for action, that the president should take another year at least to educate the Congress and the nation in the need for a clean break with the past.

They would have trouble enough, they say, merely to renew the reciprocal trade agreements legislation as it stands before it lapses next June and thus to keep the objective of lower tariffs alive, but in suspense.

If the president decides to "go ahead now" with a frontal attack on tariffs he will certainly face the hardest fight of domestic politics ever undertaken by a president in modern times.

Beside it Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal looks easy in retrospect, since he completely dominated a Congress terrified by the great depression and ready to rubberstamp almost any proposal from the White House.

Mr. Kennedy is not in that commanding position, even though the public opinion polls give him overwhelming support throughout the nation.

On the contrary, as congressional leaders explain their immediate political problem, protectionist pressure has been rising fast in the House during the last year, among Democrats as well as Republicans.

Fear Competition

High unemployment, despite a sharp business recovery, increases the general fear of foreign competition among businessmen and labor unions. The Solid South, once a predominantly farm area and the centre of low-tariff sentiment, is now undergoing an industrial revolution and has become a centre of protectionism.

Moreover, if the president goes ahead in January, as apparently he intends, he must fight his policy through the Congress in an election year. All members of the House and a third of the Senate seeking re-election next November will be highly sensitive to local pressure groups that advocate lower tariffs for everybody except themselves.

Finally, the president's timetable will plunge the free world into the simultaneous negotiations certain to act and react upon each other, with incalculable results.

While he is negotiating with his stubborn legislature Britain will be negotiating the membership in the European Common Market.

Inter-Dependent

The two negotiations, of course, are inter-dependent. Mr. Kennedy bases his whole policy on the assumption of a united European economy. Britain bases its membership in the Common Market on the assumption of freer trade across the Atlantic and throughout the free world.

The U.S. government expects to see Britain within the Common Market by next autumn at latest, the current negotiations being completed much faster than the public has been led to believe.

Mr. Kennedy obviously wishes to put his program through the Congress without delay in order to influence the European negotiations in favor of the lowest possible external tariff around the enlarged Common Market.

For if Britain and Europe conclude that the United States has no real intention of revising its tariff downward then they will tend to maintain high tariffs of their own. Hence Mr. Kennedy's impulse to strike now while the iron of Europe is hot.

Takes Big Risk

His risks in the Congress are daunting. His defeat there would not only undermine his own prestige in domestic politics, and perhaps endanger his re-election, but would shatter the hopes of Europe and the free world.

If he is to win he must be prepared to lay his leadership of the nation on the line and take his case beyond the Congress to the people.

He must use all the written and, more important, the unwritten powers of the presidency, all his unequalled experience in the Congress, and his uncanny political touch and all his courage to carry the legislature with him.

Conceivably he may pause at the last moment, heed the advice of his congressional friends and postpone his attack, but he seems to have gone beyond the point of no return already.

If so, he is launched on the supreme adventure of his career in domestic politics. As another article will indicate, Canada is a fellow passenger on his fateful voyage.

U.S. Seen Continuing Yugoslav Wheat Sale

WASHINGTON (AP)—The policy-making national security council likely will recommend that the United States continue selling surplus wheat to Communist Yugoslavia, informants said Wednesday.

But, they added, Marshal Tito didn't help his own case. At Skopje, Monday, he criticized what he called American "reactionaries and capitalists" and accused them of hindering the sale of wheat to his drought-ridden country for political purposes.

The Tito speech did not surprise Yugoslav specialists here. The Yugoslav president, they said, is not the man who could bear in silence the increased U.S. criticism of various U.S.-Yugoslav dealings, such as the sale to Belgrade of obsolete jets and atomic reactors.

President Kennedy has ordered a review of the U.S. aid program to Yugoslavia in the wake of the Belgrade conference of non-aligned countries last September. Washington thought Tito, who professes to be independent, supported Soviet policy at the conference.

Despite its disappointment with some of Tito's public statements, the Kennedy administration feels it should continue aid to Yugoslavia, informants said.

In April and in July, the United States sold $64,000,000 worth of surplus agricultural products to Yugoslavia for Yugoslav currency. About half of it was wheat, 500,000 tons, which reached Yugoslavia a few weeks ago.

Meanwhile, at the end of July, Yugoslavia submitted a new request, for 1,000,000 tons of wheat. The request, the state department announced Tuesday, was still under consideration.

U.S. URGES FAST GROWTH FOR WEST

PARIS (AP)—George W. Ball, American state undersecretary for economic affairs, appealed Thursday to Canada and the nations of Western Europe to join in a concerted effort to expand their economies by 50 per cent before 1970.

Ball submitted the plan for economic growth to the first meeting of the ministerial council of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development. He offered it as the West's reply to Moscow's 20-year plan for development.

100 MPH DANGEROUS EVEN FOR SPORT JOBS

A man was fined $35 in Central Saanich court Thursday after Magistrate A. I. Thomas ruled that 100 miles an hour is dangerous driving, even in a sports car.

Stephen R. Brewster contended his rate of speed was "foolish" but not dangerous. Police said they chased him for four and a half miles over the Pat Bay Highway on a late October evening.

A Sidney garage and sports car racer, George Stearne, testified the sports car is a lot safer than the ordinary sedan. He said risks at 100 miles an hour in a sports car are about equal to those involved at 75-80 miles an hour in a standard car.

The Crown conceded the sports car was designed for speed, but declared the overall picture justified the charge.

IS PRICE TOO HIGH?

Second Thoughts On Ship Purchase

Is there any necessity for the B.C. government to get deeper into the transportation business with purchase of the Black Ball Ferries Ltd. system? Is the reported $7,200,000 price tag too high?

These questions today were replacing the initial jubilant response of shipbuilding and tourist industry officials to the announcement that Premier Bennett was negotiating with the Seattle-based system.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce, in an official statement, said it "has always believed that government entry into the field of private business should be restricted to those areas where public interest requires a service that cannot be provided by private business.

"There are a number of reasons which can justify such a move, but none of them seem to be applicable in the proposal that the B.C. government buy out Black Ball Ferries Ltd."

The chamber pointed out that an analysis of schedules now operated by Black Ball and CPR between Nanaimo and Vancouver indicated there was virtually hourly service with 18 sailings every day in each direction.

The chamber's board of directors were scheduled to discuss the matter at a meeting today.

Officials of two other coastal ferry services also criticized further government entry into the field.

SAME RULES

Capt. O. H. New, president of Coast Ferries, said he didn't believe the government should compete against free enterprise unless it operated under the same rules as private operators had to follow.

Esson Young, an official of Barkely Sound Transportation Company, asked: "If the government works under a socialized plan, how can the man under free enterprise exist?"

From Vancouver came a report that shipping officials there questioned the $7,200,000 price tag placed on the older-type vessels and dock facilities owned by Black Ball.

$37.50 A SHARE

The price was set by Puget Sound Navigation Co. of Seattle, Black Ball's parent firm, and is based on $37.50 a share for 192,290 outstanding shares.

The Vancouver shipping people also pointed out the takeover would cost more than double the initial price under the plan to institute hourly sailings with two more ferries costing $4 million each.

MARINE HIGHWAY

However, enthusiasm for the project remained high in northern Vancouver Island communities which saw the move as a forerunner of improved transportation for now-isolated settlements.

MLA Dan Campbell (SC-Cmox) predicted the takeover would pave the way for establishment of a marine highway ferry service between Port Hardy and Prince Rupert or Kitimat, later connecting with the planned Alaska marine highway from Skagway.

'ALL THE WAY'

Expectation was that Black Ball would operate the service from Port Hardy. Mr. Campbell said, and now the provincial government is taking over there should be no hitch to the proposal.

"It appears the government will have to go into the ferry business all the way," he added.

Scurrah 'Rushes' Kennedy

Mayor Percy Scurrah Thursday left no stone unturned in an effort to win a visit to the city by U.S. President J. F. Kennedy during centennial year.

He telephoned an invitation, taken by a private secretary, during the president's visit to Seattle.

It reinforced an earlier written invitation still going through diplomatic channels.

$800 Given For Castle's Floodlighting

The Society for the Preservation and Maintenance of Craigdarroch Castle has collected $800 of $2,000 needed to finance floodlighting the building's towers next year.

Historian James K. Nesbitt, president of the society, said the project, a centennial gift to the city, is being made possible largely by the efforts and gifts of sustaining members and hoped the present list will be increased in 1962.

'LIFEBLOOD'

"The sustaining members of the society," he said, "at $25 a year, are our very lifeblood and without them we could not carry on."

MONTE ROBERTS

There were many hip-hips and assorted huzzahs! echoing through the streets of this, the Fairest City of Them All, when the B.C. government revealed it was going to increase its interest in the ferry business.

Even this operator, whose main concern with the mainland is the convenience of not having to go there, had to add a wee hip! and a kind of sort of huzzah.

The B.C. government is undoubtedly doing a great thing in buying out Black Ball, and in the process stepping up frequency of service from the vicinity of Nanaimo to the vicinity of (ugh) Vancouver.

But I must confess my hip-huzzahs were delivered through the muffling folds of a crying towel.

Because this, I think, marks the definitive end of the CPR's interest in passenger service over the ocean waves which separate our very own Island from that there mainland.

And no ferry service—no matter how fast, how frequent, how efficient, how reasonably priced—can replace the grand old days of the CPR's Princess fleet.

Call me a reactionary, an out-of-date fuddy-duddy, and I'll admit it.

But every time I pass the CP's Belleville Street establishment, I avert my eyes to avoid seeing the steamers tied alongside, idle and echoing hollowly with memories of the past.

There is, most obviously, nothing that can be done to change the pattern of transportation habits which have relegated the sleek, fast, beautiful pocket liners of the Princess fleet to the threshold of the scrap heap.

Travellers in this day and age appear to wish to get there—wherever "there" is—as quickly as possible.

There's no longer room for the gracious living once offered by the day steamer from Victoria's Inner Harbor to the piers in downtown Vancouver.

Yet allow me, for one, to remember when a journey aboard Pat or Marguerite—or, in earlier years, Vic or Charmer or Mary—was a joy from gang plank to gang plank.

Or when the even more leisurely journey by night was filled with the glamour of an ocean voyage, even though only in inland waters.

You can see why my hip, hip, huzzahs are delivered with a slight choke in the throat.

Once upon a time, the necessity of going to Vancouver didn't seem so very bad, because getting there could be fun.

Now—getting there is easy, simple, and ferries leave every hour on the hour.

With all due respect to the forward-thinking government of British Columbia, I wish the Princess liners were not joining the dodo birds.

RECRUITS FOLLOW THE SUN

Albert Head army camp will be the scene of military activity as 200 young recruits from the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Regimental Depot in Edmonton begin 13 weeks' training on Monday.

Taking advantage of Victoria's temperate climate, the army's Western Command has decided to send the recruits here for their second and third phases of basic training.

Normally all training—prior to being posted to regimental duties—is conducted at Griesbach Barracks in Edmonton and Camp Wainwright. The severe Alberta winter, however, makes training difficult.

The young trainees will arrive in Victoria Saturday and head immediately for the Albert Head base.

Borrowing Authorized

The provincial government has given B.C. Electric power to borrow up to $12,000,000.

A cabinet order today gives authority for the new crown agency to borrow any amount up to the $12,000,000 with a government guarantee.

This is the first such order since the government took over the company Aug. 1.

The money will not be used for any specific project, but will be available to meet day-to-day needs of the company.

Similar authority is granted by the cabinet to the other crown agencies such as the PGE Railway, the Toll Authority and the B.C. Power Commission.

Author Must Pay $2,900 Commission

Canadian author Raymond M. Patterson, and Mrs. Patterson, formerly of 10814 Cox, Shoal Harbor, Sidney, were ordered to pay $2,900 in real estate commission on the sale of their property in a judgment handed down by Mr. Justice J. O. Sullivan in B.C. Supreme Court Thursday.

Mr. Patterson, whose last book "The Buffalo Head" was published in New York last August, is now living in Switzerland.

In B.C. Supreme Court, V. and S. Realty Ltd., 556 Johnson, claimed $2,900 commission on the sale of the Pattersons' property to Mr. and Mrs. George M. Ross for $58,000.

Mr. Justice Sullivan ordered that the company should recover the $2,900 commission.

SCHEMED

In his judgment he said it was "patent" that Mr. Ross had a financial interest in the result of the case.

It was clear, Mr. Justice Sullivan added, that there was a scheme between the purchaser and the vendor to "avoid the payment of commission."

Robert A. Price was counsel for the company and Louis Lindholm appeared for Mr. and Mrs. Patterson.

Students Complain About Threats As 'Caper' Ends in Fines of $10

By MICHAEL ROSE

The ever-bubbling pot of rivalry between Victoria College students and Royal Roads cadets boiled over Saturday and culminated today with the fining of 11 students for trespassing.

Night raids and other "pranks" have been going on between the two for years but this is the first time charges have been laid.

Attitudes of the students who participated in the ill-fated raid on Royal Roads about 2 a.m. Saturday ranged between bewilderment, worry and bitterness.

A group estimated at 30 entered the grounds of the officer cadet training establishment with the intention of carrying off "legitimate" trophies of battle.

A total of 12 students and one other man were caught by cadets and RCMP and charged.

The students were called into a room at College early this week and told to appear in RCMP court today.

The 11 pleaded guilty before Magistrate A. I. Thomas and one not guilty.

VEILED THREATS

One spokesman for the group, Ernest Yakimovich, 1256 Rivercombe, said there had been veiled threats of more serious charges.

"We were told that if any of us got off, the service authorities were willing to press more serious charges."

He said those mentioned were: damaging government property, possession of stolen property and theft. Conviction on the first charge carries a maximum penalty of 14 years imprisonment.

COLLEGE SPIRIT

"Our aim was just to promote college spirit," said Donald MacGowan, 2467 East-downe, "and none of us went out there with any intention of damaging property."

The students said they went to Colwood Corners by car and then split up and entered the grounds.

An attempt to remove the cadets' ceremonial bell was foiled by rivets. They then tried to haul down and remove a pennant bearing cadet colors and insignia from a flagpole.

A watchman heard the squeaking of the block and gave the alarm. Cadets, in the manner of carnival men at the cry of "Hey Rube," poured out and captured seven raiders after some good-natured tussling.

The remaining five were caught by RCMP and naval authorities near their cars outside the grounds.

"Taking a pennant is one thing," said Mr. MacGowan today, "but doing damage is quite another."

The students said they had taken a 12-foot sign from the boathouse, a small peg-type directional sign from a lawn and a rack of four cadet sports pictures.

TROPHIES

All three articles they considered legitimate "trophies" of the raid. All were recovered.

Royal Roads authorities also said they took a Kluge ring lifebuoy and untied a dinghy from the jetty.

However students denied taking the ring and pointed out that winds gusting up to 86 miles an hour that night.

All were worried about the apparent severity of service authorities in pressing charges and feared for further reprisals.

"As far as we know now," said Jack Firkins, 151 Linden,

"the commanding officer may think this fine isn't enough."

"I asked if this could be held over our heads and was told we could be charged (with damaging property) any time until the statute of limitations runs out in three years' time."

As far as the students know, they said, no damage of any kind was caused by them.

"The RCMP were very courteous at the time," said George O'Brien, 2659 Avebury. "They were very helpful to us later on and made an extremely fair presentation of the case in court."

The students said RCMP Corporal Robert Rogers told the court he knew rivalry had been going on, he was sure no damage or real harm had been intended and it was just a college prank.

Magistrate Thomas criticized college pranks and told the students they were there to learn. He termed college rivalry and hazing stupid and said if any more cases came up in court they would be dealt with very severely.

CRITICIZED DRESS

The students also said he criticized their dress although all appeared dressed neatly, most in suits or sports jackets and slacks when they were interviewed after court.

"We don't mind if they come up and try to take our sundial and other trophies," said one bewildered student,

"why can't they take the same attitude?"

The following were each fined $10 and $3 costs: George Colgate, 1548 Athlone; David Davies, 3309 Cedar Hill Road; Donald MacGowan, 2467 East-downe; Robert Keziere, 1299 Oakmount; Brian Hitchens, 3161 Henderson; Hugh Morrison, 3496 Carter; John Firkins, 151 Linden; Brent Ewing, 3120 Service; Douglas Tribe, 4511 Pachena; Ernest Yakimovich, 1256 Rivercombe; George O'Brien, 2659 Avebury, and one non-student, Robert Clarke, 3364 Burns.

John Genn, 5271 Parker, entered a plea of not guilty and was remanded to Wednesday for trial.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1961—PAGE 19

Three Definite For Mayoralty

Smith Enters Race, Edgelow Backs Off

Victoria voters will have plenty of choice in selecting their 1962 council with three candidates in the field for the mayoralty and probably eight running for the four aldermanic vacancies.

The mayoralty emerged this morning as a three-way fight with Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith in it and Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow out.

There is an outside chance that Ald. M. H. Mooney may still enter the mayoralty but observers expected he would run for re-election as an alderman instead.

Ald. Edgelow decided to skip the mayoralty and seek re-election to a fifth term as an alderman. The pressure of his business "wouldn't give me the opportunity of devoting my full time to the job just now if I was elected as mayor," he said. "But I can serve again as an alderman and I will seek re-election."

NEWCOMER

Also declaring himself a candidate for alderman today was Stanley A. Haynes, 57, a native of this area who has been in the real estate business more than 35 years.

Mr. Smith entered the mayoralty at a full gallop—raising a "home rule" issue and promising he would arrange an "open house" at the B.C. Hydro building so that the public could inspect the building "and see how unsuitable it is for a new City Hall."

Mr. Smith's main opening salvo against mayoralty candidates R. B. Wilson and Elmer McEwen was an argument they should not even be in the race because they live in Oak Bay.

(Both men have business premises in the city.)

HOME RULE

"Oak Bay residents have dominated the mayoralty for years and I think it's time Victorians put their foot down and demanded 'home rule,'" Mr. Smith said. "Both my opponents are good men but they should run for Oak Bay council."

"If Victoria is good enough to represent, it's good enough to live in."

Mr. Smith, who served five years as an alderman and is in his fifth year as a Social Credit MLA for Victoria, said any counter-argument that his opponents pay heavy taxes in the city is invalid.

"They pay those taxes for protection to their businesses—for such things as fire and police service, roads and sewers."

"When it comes to representing the people, then they also should live in the community."

Mr. Smith said he also would oppose a proposal—to be voted on by ratepayers at the Dec. 14 election—to buy the B.C. Hydro building as a city hall for $660,000.

"I will arrange an open house in the Hydro Building on the Saturday before the election so everyone can come down and see how unsuitable it is for a new city hall."

He said an entirely new building should be built, along with an auditorium and other civic facilities, on the site of the present City Hall.

They could build a new structure for the same cost and create a lot of employment for our workers and put up a city hall to be proud of.

TYPICAL OAK BAY

"But instead we have this typical Oak Bay thinking that we should buy a used building that wouldn't give work to a single soul," he said.

So far, six persons have said they will contest the four aldermanic posts: Ald. Edgelow, Gordon Carter, Mr. Haynes, William Hudson, Cecil Parrott and Ald. Lily Wilson.

Although they still have not declared their intentions, observers expect both Ald. Mooney and Ald. J. L. W. McLean to seek re-election.

Roundabout Crash Brings $250 Fine

A crash into the roundabout early this morning resulted in a $250 fine for Charles Waggett, 2532 Thompson, when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

The accident, in which there was no injury, occurred at 12.15 a.m.

Keen Contests For Esquimalt, Oak Bay Seats

Oak Bay and Esquimalt this year are showing perhaps their greatest interest ever in municipal elections.

Oak Bay will have a three-way contest for the reeveship, and three candidates have come forward already for the three council seats to become vacant at the end of the year.

Esquimalt also will have three council seats on the block, and an election is assured with six persons already considered certain candidates.

SELF-CONTAINED

Third and newest of the Oak Bay candidates is 39-year-old Norman Pittam, who announced today he will enter the race with a platform calling for continued development of Oak Bay as a self-contained community.

He favors improved recreational and cultural facilities, such as a library and better parks, and better north-south communications in the municipality "to make our facilities available to all our residents."

This would call for a better bus service, he said.

BEATEN IN 1959

Mr. Pittam was an unsuccessful candidate in the Oak Bay municipal by-election of 1959.

So far his opponents are incumbent Allan Cox and outsider Walter Dodsworth.

Mr. Pittam is an insurance broker.

The reeveship also will be at stake Dec. 7. Incumbent George Murdoch will seek re-election against Coun. Gordon Elworthy and newcomer Jack Barraclough.

The 250-member Oak Bay Ratepayers' Association plans to hold a private, all-candidate meeting in the municipal hall following nomination day Nov. 27, at which it is expected to endorse one or more candidates.

In Esquimalt, Councilors Arthur Fields, Walter Holder and G. T. Sammon will see their terms end Dec. 31, and all three are expected to seek re-election. Their nominations need not be forwarded until Nov. 27, 10 days prior to the election.

EX-NAVY MAN

First new hat in the ring was tossed by Bert Nelson, retired naval man who operates a bowling alley on Esquimalt Road adjacent to the municipal hall.

Also intending to run are Peter Francis, 1347 Sussex, and Leslie Fred Tooby, 935 Old Esquimalt Road.

Both men are dockyard workers and need official permission from the Civil Services Commission before they can officially enter the race.

Neither of the two foresees any difficulty in this regard.

Mr. Francis ran two years ago for the post of councillor and lost by 30 votes. He is an electrical draughtsman.

CRANE OPERATOR

Mr. Tooby is a crane operator at the dockyard and is an active softball and soccer referee in the Victoria area.

"I have been considering for two or three years that I should run," he said. "I have lived nearly all my life in Victoria and have always worked for the betterment of the community."

"I was born in England, but was brought to Canada before I could walk or talk," he added.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

A young sailor who did not like his cell was fined $20 and damages in police court today for ripping out part of the jail.

William Thomas, 26, HMCS Assiniboine, was booked on a drunk charge Thursday night and placed in the main cell block.

When he became violent police removed him to the padded cell where he promptly ripped off $35 worth of the wall lining.

He was also fined $10 for being drunk in a public place.

A meeting of the Victoria chapter, Dale Carnegie Alumni Association, will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in Woodsworth Hall, Courtenay Street.

At the chapter's last meeting Sylvia Jubb was given the association's "Good Human Relations" award.

The film version of a children's book will be shown at a meeting of the Cloverdale PTA Monday at 8 p.m. in the school.

City Architect To Design New St. Chad's

Victoria architect Charles E. Craig will design a new church to be built by St. Chad's Anglican congregation on a three-acre site between Shelbourne and Torquay overlooking the eastern valley of Mount Douglas, it was announced today.

Rev. H. Gordon Walker, vicar of St. Chad's, announced Mr. Craig's appointment.

At a dinner meeting on Nov. 9, the congregation of St. Chad's voted unanimously in favor of moving to the new site from the present church at Hawthorne and Majestic, Mount Douglas.

"We plan to hold our 1962 Christmas services in the present mission and the 1963 New Year services in the first new unit," Mr. Walker said.

"We intend to have religious and education centres, good parking facilities and a family park area, as well as a church edifice."

Mixed Bag of Sun, Rain Predicted Over Weekend

Clear skies of the last few days have given way to a weather system which has arrived over the city from the Pacific.

It is expected to give rain tonight, weatherman William Mackie said today.

"Saturday should be mostly sunny, but beyond that there is further trouble," he said.

"We expect cloudy skies Sunday and more rain by Sunday night."

Temperatures tonight will range between 35 and 40 degrees, and rain at higher levels on the Island will be mixed with snow, Mr. Mackie said.

High Saturday will be 48 degrees.

Winds will be westerly at 25 miles per hour tonight, then will decrease after midnight.

History of Danger, Romance Has Led Us to Good Eating

By PENNY SAVER

Dear Sister: Today I'm in the mood to take you on a voyage to the exotic countries of the world where, hundreds of years ago, the quest for spices was exciting and romantic. You don't want to travel? ... You'd sooner have your spices at home? Well ... adventures can still be found. Adventures in good eating!

Right in front of me as I write is a new book sponsored by a leading producer of spices that has in its innards hundreds of recipes for delectable dishes.

The book features a history of spices and directions not only on how to use them but when to use them. Two hundred pages of sheer delight for the busy housewife. Selling regularly for $7.75, the publisher has an introductory offer, until Christmas, of only $5.95.

Wouldn't Mom just love one?

Quality spices put out by this firm are also available in Victoria. There are more than 100 different varieties, all at reasonable prices. They've even got Mexican vanilla beans, packaged in long glass tubes, that sell for 79 cents and can be used for flavoring ice cream, fruit sauces, custards and puddings.

Because Christmas time is party time and I'm sure you'll be having at least one gathering during the season, I'm sending along one of the marvelous recipes from the new cook book.

Special Cocktail Sauce:
Half teaspoon horseradish, 1 teaspoon water, ¼ cup catsup, 1 teaspoon shredded green onions, 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon Beau Monde Seasoning, ¼ teaspoon hot mustard, ½ teaspoon cayenne pepper, 1 tablespoon finely chopped celery.
Mix horseradish with water then mix together with catsup, shredded green onions and vinegar. Add Worcestershire sauce, Beau Monde, hot mustard, cayenne and chopped celery. Chill well before serving. Makes one cup.

Longing to try some of these sumptuous taste treats? Call me and I'll tell you where to find the book ... and the spices.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Night or Day, Exercises Valuable

Q. "How long does it take to see some difference in one's figure after beginning figure molding exercises? Also, when is the best time to exercise, in the morning or at night?"

A. The length of time it takes before seeing improvement depends on how regularly and efficiently you do the exercises and also on the measurement. Some measurements respond more quickly than others. Usually, the waistline is first to decrease in size. The abdomen is next, while the hips and thighs are usually more "stubborn."

Your exercises will be equally valuable whether taken at night or in the morning. Do them when it is most convenient and pleasant for you, the only exception being when digestion is at its height.

Q. "Can you please tell me what kind of a doctor to consult about my leg? One is shorter than the other."

A. See an orthopedic physician.

Q. "I am 4 feet, 11 inches tall and weigh 121 pounds. I am 40 years old. I was always thin, but now have gained some weight. Everyone thinks I look good. Should I lose some weight?"

A. The pounds you gain finally, after trying for years to do so, can be heady as well as hippy. If you have a small frame, you are a little overweight. If you have a medium to large frame, your weight is satisfactory.

Q. "Will creams and lotions cause hair to grow on the face?"

A. No.

Q. "I am only 21 years old but I am faced with a very distracting problem. I have bags under my eyes. What causes them and how can I get rid of them?"

A. There are many causes. Perhaps you should see your doctor for a check-up. Loss of sleep, too much smoking and too little exercise, malnutrition and allergies, can cause these, as well as some physical disorders.

Q. "I would like to know if I should weigh more. I am 5 feet 6 inches tall and weigh 122 pounds. Tell me about my measurements, too, please. My bust measures 34 inches, waist 25 and hips 36½. I have a medium frame."

A. Since you have a medium build, you should gain about 10 pounds. Your weight is just about right for a small frame—concentrate on hip-slimming exercises for a loss of an inch and a half.

DEAR ABBY ...

She Went Him One Better!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife has been very much overweight for the past five years. In spite of my efforts she has refused to do anything about it. Several months ago my mother suggested I give her a hard time, call her "baby elephant" and pay a lot of attention to women with nice figures. I did this for about six months without results.

Finally, my wife packed up and left. Now she tells me she wants a divorce so she can marry a man who likes fat women. I love her very much and would take her back if she weighed 300. How do I get her back?

BACKFIRED.

DEAR ABBY: Court her with flowers, telegrams, phone calls and promises. If this doesn't work — ask your mother.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and want to know something. This has happened twice to me with two different boys and I am not sure what to do about it. When a boy takes you out and says he has had a great time and promises to call you on a certain day at a certain time and then doesn't call, what should you say to him the next time you see him?

DISAPPOINTED.

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Don't mention his broken promise. He obviously "forgot." didn't care or his immaturity is showing. In any case, he's not worth worrying about.

***

DEAR ABBY: How can I keep my husband's family from begging practically everything I own? For example, my mother-in-law will say, "I'll be glad when you get a new living room suite so I can have your old one." (I had not mentioned getting a new one.)

Also a sister-in-law announced, "When you get through with that purse, don't throw it away. I want it."

I made new drapes for my living room and stored the old ones in a box in my attic, thinking I might use them later for something else. My mother-in-law and two of her daughters jumped on me to get the old drapes. I felt guilty saying I was "keeping them," so I finally gave them up. All the relatives who beg things from me are better off financially than I am. How can I keep them off my back?

CALL ME SELFISH.

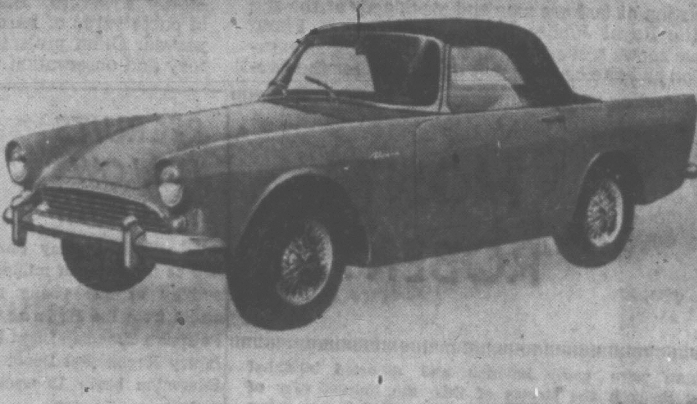

DEAR SELFISH: It is your privilege to "store" things if you wish. You need the courage to speak your mind. When you are asked for something, reply, "I'll let you know when I am ready to discard it." And reply, write to Abby in care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. What's yours? For a personal

Black Velvet The Medium For Artist

By PAT DUFOUR

Some of the most arresting portraits I've ever seen are being exhibited in Victoria right now and until Nov. 24. Most of them are painted on black velvet.

Exhibition is the work of a Vancouver woman, Joy Caros, and the result of a recent stay in Honolulu where, on her own admission, she "painted until her arm nearly dropped off". Portraits are of Chinese, Japanese and the many mixed races that make up the average Hawaiian today.

Joy Caros makes no bones about her preference for Orientals as models. "They have always been numbered among my best friends and I feel in tune with them. They have an inner beauty that I respond to immediately."

Mrs. Caros set the art colony in Vancouver on their respective ears when she began to experiment with black velvet. She tells of the time when she entered work for the first time in the Stanley Park exhibition. "They considered me a lazy artist that couldn't be bothered to paint backgrounds. I, on the other hand, believed that the story could be told in an expressive face and a pair of eyes rather than with a symbolic backdrop."

Since that first exhibition her reputation has gained rapidly. She is known internationally for her awards in many countries. (She brought back from Hawaii this week a gold cup and three ribbons awarded her at an art exhibit in Honolulu.)

IT TAKES TIME

Admitting that she perfected her art by "trial and error," she ruefully admits:

"My garbage can is full of velvet scraps. Once a mistake is made you can't erase it. You have to start all over again."

Secret of perfection, she says, lies in way oil paint is applied. "It has to be done smoothly so that you can rub your hand over the surface and feel no hardness. Each coat has to be dried in the sun so you can imagine how long it takes."

In January she plans to re-visit Honolulu and concentrate on portraits of people in the Hawaiian section for an exhibition which she's been invited to give in California.

She has another important date. Her Hawaiian friends have asked her to be judge at ceremony electing the Narcissus Queen.

"This is put on by the Chinese community and the girls chosen is given a round-the-world trip, being feted by the Chinese communities of many countries."

After this she plans to visit Tahiti, Hong Kong and other places and bring back portraits that, as she puts it, "will allow me to share the beauty I see."

Joy Caros' ambition is to make her home in Hawaii. But this may take a little doing.

"I haven't talked it out properly with my husband yet. There's his job as a city policeman and our two children, Julie, nine, and five-year-old George."

"But," she says with quiet confidence, "I'm sure we'll make it one day."

"Marrying"—can it make a whisky taste better?

"Judge for yourself," says Tom Chant, who 'marries' our whisky.
"I blend matured whiskies, then leave them lie in the cask till they're formed into one light taste. That's 'marrying'. Tricky.
I have to get the timing just right, keep the whiskies cool, undisturbed, let them make their perfect taste.
"We're proud of Bonded Stock at Gooderham & Worts. It's very popular —has been for generations. And when you taste Bonded Stock, you'll appreciate the skill and craftsmanship that go into making it the whisky it is."

Representative John McCormack of Massachusetts, the

SEPARATISTS SPEAK OUT

'New' Confederation Canada's Only Hope

By JOHN YORSTON
QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian affairs conference at Laval University hears from separatist leader Marcel Cha-put today after being told that Confederation must be remade if Canada is to survive.
Dr. Chaput, forbidden earlier this week to take time off from his job at the Defence Research Board in Ottawa, told conference officials Thursday he is coming on his own initiative to discuss Confedera-tion's future with Michael Oliver, McGill University professor of economics and political science.
The conference, attended by students from 30 Canadian universities, was told Thursday that "if Confederation is not a failure, it is in very bad shape in our eyes."
The declaration came from Andre Laurendeau, editor of Montreal Le Devoir who said if French and English-Canada are to avoid a fatal rupture
"we must agree together to remake Confederation."
"If a growing segment of French-Canadians think of Ottawa as foreign... I am afraid we are walking along an unpredictable road towards rupture," Mr. Laurendeau said.
NEED TO WORK HARD
Mr. Laurendeau spoke after
Dr. Eugene Forsey, a research director of the Canadian Labor Congress, said English-Canadians will "have to sit down and work hard to make Canada a success."
Theme of the conference, which ends Saturday, is "The Canadian Experiment — Success or Failure?"
Dr. Forsey and Murray Ballantyne, Montreal author and historian, said Canada will not be able to survive American cultural influence without French Canada.
"If we are not going to become American, we must work out a bilingual Canada," Mr.
Ballantyne said. Canada must realize it has a dual culture or cease to exist. The English must accept the French "before it is too late."
Mr. Laurendeau said that when the Massey report on Canadian cultural affairs was published he thought fear of United States cultural influence would unite French- and English-Canada, "that the idea of maintaining and building a different country together would draw us more closely together."
But instead, the two groups had drawn apart, separatism had appeared in Quebec and in English-Canada it appeared fa-talism and indifference were winning.

Read Kordel And Eat Well

Lelord Kordel has drawn up a better-eating plan in connection with his series of articles, "Feel Young Again." Free copies of this plan are available by writing to The Times, 2631 Douglas St., and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FEEL YOUNG AGAIN

Keep Yourself In Tune To 'Harmony of Health'

By LELORD KORDEL

Thousands upon thousands of persons are alive and healthy today who otherwise would long ago have lain in their graves were it not for the renewed lease on life given them by vitamin therapy.

The discovery of vitamins and the part they play in maintaining and restoring human health is one of the most important biochemical achievements of this age.

New uses for vitamins are coming to light every day.

Weigh well the claims made for all vitamins as natural medicines.

The only criterion, other than the advice of your physician, is a forthright consideration of your own nutritional habits and a knowledge of your own tendencies toward certain bodily disorders.

Common Sense

There is much to gain in health and vigor by adopting nutritional therapy on a common-sense basis.

The constant need for vitamin-rich food in your diet is an oft-told tale, and one which I shall not repeat here.

Yet there is this little-known fact: proteins and vitamins work together.

In other words you can't expect the vitamins in your food (or the vitamin supplement you take) to give you all the benefits you expect from them, unless you also provide your body with ample quantities of protein foods each day.

Nutritional science has learned that successful vitamin therapy depends upon the presence of adequate high-proteins in the diet. Some biochemists even go so far as to declare that your vitamin needs should always begin with a high-protein diet. And that means plenty of meat, fish, cheese, eggs and seed cereals.

Many Deceived

Unfortunately, however, far too many of us are deceived in the vitamin content of the food we eat. Ideally, the diet should supply the body with all necessary vitamins. Actually, it works out far differently.

Some foods do not contain the vitamins they should because of the way they are grown, picked, and marketed, while other foods are robbed of their precious vitamin content because of poor storage in the kitchen or improper preparation.

Fruits and vegetables may appear fresh and green on the market, yet be grossly lacking in vitamins, and minerals as well.

Need Supplement

Therefore, unless you grow your own fruits and vegetables on properly fertilized soil—or can purchase them from farms and gardens containing carefully enriched soil to your certain knowledge—there is every possibility you are not obtaining in your food all the vitamins and minerals needed to keep you looking and feeling young.

For that reason, a good vitamin-mineral food supplement is recommended, even though your meals may be well-balanced and seem adequate.

My personal choice is a formula known as Nutri-Time. I wouldn't let a day go by without it!

If we could be assured of a supply of truly fresh foods, then I would say, "Forget about vitamins, and concentrate more on a properly balanced diet."

'Harmonize'

But the great majority of us must depend upon "store-bought" food for our tables, and we are forced to consider the all-important question of whether or not our diets contain adequate amounts of all vitamins to maintain maximum health and vitality.

So interrelated are vitamins with minerals and proteins, that we cannot say one is more important than the other. Like the instruments in a symphony orchestra, each food element helps to maintain the harmony of health.

I believe that the alarming increase in our so-called "civilized diseases" can be traced directly to the time when we stopped growing, processing, and preparing our own food.

Carefully planned meals plus adequate vitamins in concentrated form, provide the only way I know of whereby you can make certain that vitamins are "adequate" in your diet. And adequate they must be, if you don't want your health and vitality to bog down.

Next: Chairwarmers don't need high-fat, high-starch diets. You'd better be off one or the other—or you're asking for trouble.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

TORONTO, November 16th — Autumn's cool, invigorating days make for bigger and better appetites... and I know just the perfect breakfast food to satisfy them! Begin every brisk November morning with big bowls of piping-hot RED RIVER CEREAL. A real flavour favourite with all the family and thoroughly nourishing too! You see, Red River is a wholesome blend of cracked wheat, rye and flax. Youngsters and active adults need its extra energy values... and, of course, it's nature's mild regulator. Do serve it tomorrow! It takes just a few minutes to prepare the best hot breakfast there is... Red River Cereal!

DWELLING PLACES ARE LIKE CHILDREN, they need to be washed and cleaned, repaired and tended if they are to look their best and be a credit to you. Whether you own your own home, a block of flats or an apartment building, it makes good sense to keep your property as attractive as you keep yourself and your family. Don't let lack of ready cash delay those repairs or improvements... Talk to the people at your neighbourhood BANK OF MONTREAL branch about a low-cost Home Improvement Loan. And now's the time to work on your property... when skilled workers are available.

DOING MORE ENTERTAINING THESE DAYS? I think most of us notice a jump in our food budgets now that party season is here. Well, here's a way to make your budget look better. Use BLUE BONNET MARGARINE instead of that costly spread now on your table. You'll be surprised at the money you save — and delighted with Blue Bonnet. Because it's an all-vegetable margarine, it's both delicious and nutritious. Everyone, yes everyone! — enjoys its fresh, sunny-sweet flavour. Use it in your cooking and baking, as well as a spread for bread. Discover for yourself how Blue Bonnet makes just about everything taste better!

YOU'LL SAY 'DELICIOUS!' when you taste this delightfully different vegetable... LIBBY'S SAUER-KRAUT. Its crisp, mellow flavour is always just right... and what's more, it is one of the most healthful and economical dishes you can serve. Delicious when served cold in salads or sandwiches, or hot with meat. But be sure not to overcook it — just warm it through. This way you'll preserve the healthful goodness of its lactic acid content. High in vitamins, low in calories and low in cost... Libby's Sauerkraut is what I'd call a real 'bargain' in good health and flavour!

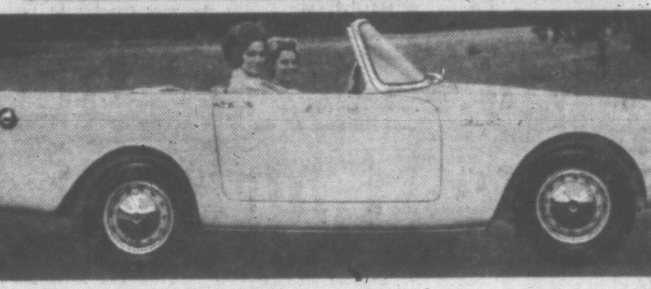

IF YOU'VE BEEN FEELING a little gloomy and out of sorts lately, you're in for a happy surprise! CORRECTOL will change your outlook from 'blue' to bright and cheerful. Developed specially for you and me, Correctol contains a non-laxative regulator that guarantees prompt, effective, yet gentle action. Yes, Correctol is so gentle, it's ideal even during pregnancy and after childbirth. Where ordinary laxatives may prove harsh or fail, I've found that Correctol helps maintain healthful regularity. Write to me, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, Quebec, for your FREE SAMPLE!

HERE IS MY SECRET IN WINNING THE "WAR" against dangerous germs that lurk in every drain. Use GILLET'S DRAIN CLEANER once a week... every week. Why? Because liquid disinfectants can't budge the filthy muck these germs breed in... it takes the special churning, boiling action of Gillett's Drain Cleaner to quickly and completely scour out every trace of this germ-breeding mess that collects in clogged-up drains. And besides being fast and thorough, Gillett's Drain Cleaner is so easy to use... just 2 tablespoons in every drain once a week does the trick!

FM Radio Rides Escalator With Government Blessing

By JOHN BASSETT

FM radio is on the move, and it can't develop too fast to suit both government and business.

This appears to be the general picture in light of the recent rise in FM interest and competition.

There are now a total of 136,470 homes in Canada which have receiving sets for FM. Victoria has 2,400 of them, according to Roy Parrett of CFAA.

ON UPSWING

While this does not appear to be a large number the fact does remain that FM listening is on the upswing.

The best example of this is displayed in the construction of today's new radios. Most have FM incorporated in them.

Radio and appliance shops, as well as the major department stores report that people who come in to buy a radio these days usually make specific requests regarding FM.

The federal government has also been quick to realize that FM is a rapidly progressing field.

WANTS MORE

The Board of Broadcast Governors, the regulation broadcast agency of the government, says that it wants more FM radio in Canada.

The reason for this is that FM is growing so rapidly in the U.S. it is getting tougher day by day to preserve many Canadian FM frequencies.

These frequencies have been assigned under international

35 IN CANADA

At the moment there are only 35 FM stations in Canada as compared to the 235 AM stations.

But these 35 stations, and the ones which are due to open, have a varied career ahead of them both in the field of broadcasting and multiplexing.

Up until a short time ago broadcasts over FM had consisted largely of unbroken strands of classical music.

This format has been broken slightly but the Board of Broadcast Governors does not intend to let FM become a more lucent quality of AM.

MUST BE DIFFERENT

The board insists that FM be kept "significantly different" from standard band AM radio and broadcast fewer commercials.

As FM has a technically superior frequency modulation to AM the board feels there is a great future.

An FM station does not flag day or night and has a quality much superior to AM. There is no static on FM and there is the same area coverage at all times.

These facts prompted the note in the BBG's annual report that FM radio would probably completely overshadow AM "in the foreseeable future."

CHRISTMAS START

Victoria listeners can grasp as many as six FM stations and will get one more when CFAA's new FM station begins broadcasting on Christmas Day.

But listeners may, if they desire, receive many more benefits from FM than clear quality broadcasting.

These "extras" all come under the heading of multiplexing.

Multiplexing is basically the splitting of the main wave band so that individual messages and signals may be sent off which are undetected by the general listener.

SAME WITH FM

An explanatory analogy is the television set. It is possible on a TV set to get both sound and picture, and a myriad of different pictures, depending on the adjustment of the set.

The same can be done with FM radio. It is therefore possible for the broadcaster to send messages to people who expect them on a slightly different frequency than the general public is receiving.

This can be done by adjusting a set, or placing a special transistor in it.

MANY USES

In this manner FM can also turn traffic lights on and off and close up store lights and overhead signs.

This phenomenon of multiplexing also makes it possible for the station to pipe music into businesses on a contract basis without having to suffer the pain of commercials.

By the use of these many diverse aspects of FM a company gaining a charter might look ahead to a profitable future, if it likes competition.

BRIGHTER FUTURE

The audience trend in broadcasting seems inexorably fixed to the FM band, and this coupled with the pro FM policy of the BBG tends to brighten a hitherto rather sparse interest in the field.

It would appear that the only persons to suffer from the growth of FM will be the bobby-soxer who likes to while away his hours with Elvis tuned to his ear, for the BBG will have no part of "joke box" music on the FM bands.

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP)—The famed 1,000-acre Chilco Ranch in the heart of B.C.'s interior Chilcotin country has been sold for $2,000,000 cash, believed a record price in Canadian ranching transactions.

President John L. Wade of the Cariboo Land and Cattle Company, owners of the big spread, said today the ranch, its more than 5,000 head of Hereford cattle and other assets, were purchased by John Minor of Abbey, Sask., and William Gilchrist of Maple Creek, Sask.

The Chilco ranch is second in size in B.C. only to the famous Gang Ranch, located in the same area of the province, 90 miles west of here.

Wade said the new owners will take over Dec. 28.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—One of the happier experiences in this frequently sad world is when you see a young couple like Tommy Sands and Nancy Sinatra setting up housekeeping in the Times Square section—over some shops and a delicatessen—full of assurance about tomorrow.

"Which way is Bloomingdale?" Nancy and Tommy asked the other day—and headed there to buy furnishings for their modest apartment.

"Oh, we have to wait a couple of weeks now, until everything about opening the account clears," Nancy reported a couple of hours later.

THREE MOVIES

Tommy, 24 now, good-looking, courteous, neat, wants to make it on his own. He's done three pictures this year; he and Nancy have done the Perry Como show, though they don't want to be a team.

Nancy'll be making visits to Grandmother Sinatra in Weehawken, N.J., said to have been the first woman who ever attended a prize fight. It's family legend that 50 or more years ago, when her husband was making an appearance in the ring, she was determined to see him fight, and because there was a rule against women attending—she got in disguised as a boy.

"Is Nancy going to do much cooking?" I asked Tommy.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL

Singer Jill Corey and Pirate infielder Don Hoak are getting married in Pittsburgh. Eleanor Powell rushed a dance coach to Lake Tahoe to teach her the Twist for her act at Harrah's. Ex-Miss America Mary Ann Mobley will fly to Hollywood for a Warner screen test. The Peppermint Lounge, home of the Twist, leased its name, and a Miami branch'll open Dec. 1. Janet Leigh and the kids are arriving from Argentina, by air.

CYCLONE TOLL RISES, EPIDEMICS THREATEN

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP)—Death and damage estimates from Cyclone Tara edged higher Thursday as hunger and the threat of epidemics haunted tropical towns north of here.

With bodies still being found under mud-covered debris, the unofficial death toll from Saturday's storm was put at 327. Hundreds were listed as missing.

This is higher than Hurricane Hattie, which razed Belize, British Honduras, recently and left a toll of 321 dead and 225 missing.

QUALITY, NOT COLOR

No Racial Bans On Immigration

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government believes it has found a formula to remove racial discrimination from Canada's immigration laws without opening this country's gates to a flood of immigrants whose skins are black, brown or yellow.

A government spokesman said this objective will be achieved under new immigration regulations now being drafted. They are expected to become effective before the next session of Parliament.

The objective will be to treat all immigrants alike in line with the government's present policy of selective immigration based on quality rather than quantity.

Under this policy stress is placed on encouraging immigrants with skills and professions to migrate to Canada. The arrival of unskilled workers is discouraged, although nothing has been done to restrict immigration to persons with skills and trades. Unskilled workers make up the bulk of Canada's unemployed.

Existing regulations under the Immigration Act apply mainly to prospective immigrants before they arrive in Canada. They have the effect of limiting the influx of non-white immigrants from China, Japan, India, the Near East, Africa and the West Indies.

FACE TOUGH BARRIERS
Such persons face immigration barriers which can prove difficult or insurmountable even if they have a skill or profession.

It is understood that under the new regulations such persons with skills, crafts and professions required in Canada will be able to apply for admission as immigrants. The test will be an individual's ability and the contribution that he can make to Canada's expanding technological economy—not the color of his skin.

Sect's Plans To Move Questioned

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Bonner said Thursday the Sons of Freedom sect of Doukhobors have asked no help from the provincial government in its proposed migration to South America.

"I don't regard the matter seriously," the attorney-general told interviewers. "This is the fourth exodus they proposed since I arrived here."

Mr. Bonner was commenting on plans announced by leaders of the sect, long blamed for violence in the Kootenays, that land would be purchased in Uruguay and a move made there.

Throat Slashings Kill Toronto Pair

TORONTO (CP)—A young man and woman were found dead with their throats slashed today in a midtown Toronto rooming house.

Police launched a province-wide search for a car with United States licence plates seen in front of the house during the night. They said the deaths appeared to be double murder.

Thomas Crater, 30, and Jean Rochelle, 28, both colored, were found dead early today by night post office worker Frank McGuire, a resident of the house.

400 STILL STRANDED

First Big Storm Pushes Eastward

By United Press International

November's first great storm pushed toward the Atlantic today, dropping heavy rain on New England, fanning gales on the Great Lakes and leaving sub-freezing cold from the Rockies through the corn belt.

Search parties in New Mexico's mountains planned another try today at rescuing the last of some 400 deer hunters stranded all week by up to three feet of snow. The rescuers were working against a deadline, with another snow storm due tonight.

Rivers and streams were nearing flood crests in parts of Iowa, Kansas and Missouri. Parts of the midwest, from the plains to northern Michigan, were digging out from under up to half a foot of snow.

Canadian cold which followed the storm kept temperatures near the freezing mark throughout Thursday from Salt Lake City to Des Moines, into the low 20's over much of the centre of the continent.

The weather was blamed for two Iowa bus accidents Thursday which inflicted minor injuries to 33 persons.

HOW TO STOP LOOKING OLDER THAN YOUR BIRTHDAYS

This famous cream, now with Allantoin, starts to repair dry skin in just 10 minutes! ## Escapees Face Quiz On Slaying

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four British Columbia detectives have left for the Prairies to question four Alberta prison fugitives captured here last month in connection with the gangland-style slaying of a fifth fugitive.

The shotgun-blasted body of Roderick Chief, 25, was found late Wednesday in a shallow grave on a North Burnaby waterfront hillside, about three-quarters of a mile east of Vancouver's Second Narrows bridge.

Police arrested two young women for questioning yesterday. The women were believed to have been drinking with Chief shortly before he was killed, police said.

Two members of the Vancouver force and two RCMP officers have flown to the Prairies, meanwhile, to interview the four men who escaped with Chief from Calgary's Spy Hill jail Oct. 7.

The escapees, arrested here three weeks ago and sent to a federal prison at Prince Albert, Sask., to complete their sentences, are Donald Harry Everitt, 21; William Archer, 41 Douglas Ivan Bevans, 23, and Ronald Kenneth Neerguard, 25.

One of the women arrested in Vancouver is believed to be related to Donald Harry Everitt, one of the fugitives.

Sources at police headquarters yesterday said Vancouver police got a tip a month ago there had been a murder soon after the men escaped from Spy Hill.

Officers said Chief's body was ripped almost in half by a gun blast to the abdomen.

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—Warden Fred Cummings of federal penitentiary here Thursday said he had four prisoners "placed in protective custody" following announcement of the discovery of the body of Roderick Chief.

JFK, Bennett Talk Privately

Premier 'More Optimistic Than Ever' on Columbia

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said today he is "more optimistic than ever" that the Columbia River power project will go ahead.

The premier made the statement on his return this morning to Victoria from Seattle, where he attended a Democratic party banquet at which President John Kennedy was guest speaker.

President Kennedy and Premier Bennett talked together twice during the dinner, and later held a 15-minute meeting in the president's suite at the Olympic Hotel.

Mr. Bennett, in an airport interview here, admitted he met U.S. officials to discuss hydro power development in B.C.

"The reception couldn't have been more friendly," he said. However, the premier refused to confirm or deny the private interview with the president, nor would he say if they talked about the Columbia.

"I'm not going to add or detract from any assumption anybody else makes," he said. But, as Mr. Bennett had explained before going to the Seattle banquet, as a provincial premier he was in no way officially entitled to discuss negotiations on an international question such as the Columbia.

Secrecy Necessitated by Protocol

The secrecy shrouding the private meeting with the president was explained by observers as a necessity of protocol.

Officially the federal government is the sole negotiator with the Americans on developing the Columbia.

However, Mr. Bennett was obviously cheered by the reception from the Americans to B.C.'s stand on power. He wants to sell them all the downstream benefits available to Canada in the U.S. once dams are built at Duncan and Arrow Lakes and Mica Creek in B.C.

He is convinced he can get enough money from the sale to pay for building the three dams.

Ottawa is apparently against this idea and wants the benefits returned as cheap power to the province.

Mr. Bennett said he was very impressed with the friendliness of U.S. government officials toward him as B.C.'s premier.

When introduced at the banquet—a testimonial to his friend U.S. Senator Warren Magnuson—by Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, Mr. Bennett was given a standing ovation, led by the president.

Mr. Mansfield, after a glowing introduction, told guests at the $100-a-plate dinner the premier was doing "a great favor" by attending.

Mr. Bennett said that as far as B.C. is concerned there is no delay here on launching the Columbia project.

He said that through the power commission the province is "doing everything possible" to complete engineering on the three damsites.

Next step will be ratification by Ottawa of the treaty with the U.S. setting out the details. Congress has already ratified it.

YACHT CAPT. KILLS SELF

MIAMI (UPI)—Capt. Julian Harvey, skipper of the ill-fated ketch Blue Bell that sank Sunday night in the Bahamas, killed himself today in a Miami hotel.

Harvey, 45, of Fort Lauderdale, was one of the two survivors of the sinking of the Blue Bell. A passing freighter picked up 11-year-old Terry Jo Duperrault Thursday. She is recuperating from severe shock and exposure at a Miami hospital.

Swiss Farmers In Riot

BERN (AP)—Rioting Swiss farmers besieged the parliament building for more than two hours today, repeatedly beating back police.

Several persons were reported injured before police finally dispersed the rioters with tear gas and fire hoses. The farmers were demonstrating for higher food prices. It was the first violent demonstration.

They threw rotten eggs and vegetables at police, held up buses and traffic, slashed tires and chanted anti-government slogans.

'Non-Nuclear Club' Plan Before UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Sweden and five other countries today introduced a resolution in the General Assembly's main political committee calling for establishment of a "non-nuclear club."

The measure, sponsored by Austria, Ceylon, Ethiopia, Libya and Sudan, in addition to Sweden, calls for action by the UN disarmament commission on a pact among countries to refrain from manufacturing or otherwise acquiring nuclear weapons and refusing to receive such arms on their territory.

Bomb Secrecy

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government refused on security grounds today to give any information about the neutron bomb demanded by independent Labor party legislators in the House of Commons.

UN Planes Attack Congolese

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters)—United Nations planes have attacked three strongholds of mutinous national Congolese army troops in the Kindu area of Kivu province, according to radio reports received here today.

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The United Nations flew Malayan troops to Kindu today to round up and punish Congolese Army butchers of 13 Italian UN airmen.

Plane loads of Malaysians were flown to the Lualaba River port in Kivu province with orders to encircle and disarm the killers and others in a force of 1,000 reported to have been incited to mutiny by the Congo's Lumumbist vice-premier, Antoine Gizenga. About 80 of the drunken and undisciplined soldiery—undeterred by a 200-man Malayan contingent on duty at the Kindu airfield—shot and cut up the Italians near the town prison Saturday.

Cries of "they are Flemish Belgians" accompanied the massacre. Parts of the bodies were tossed to excited spectators.

BROUGHT SUPPLIES

The mob had set upon the Italians as they dined in the Malayan officers' mess after landing two transports carrying powdered milk and hospital supplies.

The UN organization in the Congo, headed by Sture Linnér of Sweden, demanded immediate arrest of the Congolese commander at Kindu—who disavowed responsibility by declaring "you know how soldiers are"—and establishment of a United Nations-Congolese commission to seek out "the remaining culprits."

In a report to New York, Linnér said all resources of the UN Congo command would be used to disarm the Congolese, seal off the Kindu area and round up all suspects.

"Pieces of the bodies were distributed to the large crowd gathered to watch the massacre," Linnér said, "and some parts of the bodies were also flung at non-Congolese who were present."

"Two mutilated bodies were dragged through the main streets of Kindu and exhibited... All the remains of the bodies were then thrown into the river."

GRUESOME SPECTACLE

Official reports from Kindu residents said hands and feet chopped from the airmen were handed around as trophies. A severed hand was tossed on the desk of a World Health Organization doctor as a gesture of contempt.

UN spokesman George Ivan Smith said the UN handed a letter to Premier Cyrille Adoula insisting on punitive action.

MAJ.-GEN. McKEOWN
... 'crisis mounting'

More Troops Definite Need

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Acting Secretary-General U Thant summoned his top Congo advisers into private session today to hear recommendations from the United Nations military commander in the Congo that his forces be strengthened to cope with mounting violence.

U Thant conferred with his Congo advisory committee amid anger at UN headquarters over the brutal slaying of 13 Italian airmen of the UN command by mutinous Congolese soldiers in Kivu province.

Present were Maj.-Gen. Sean McKeown, commander of the UN Congo force, and Conor Cruise O'Brien, chief UN representative in the Congo's Katanga province.

They were ordered here to brief U Thant on the situation. McKeown said on arrival Thursday the UN needs more men and equipment to deal with the mounting crisis. He added that those responsible for the slayings would have to be apprehended but that this would be difficult since Congolese officers have little control over their troops.

The UN Congo force once numbered more than 22,000 men, but is down to 15,490 since the withdrawal of contingents from Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco, Tunisia and the United Arab Republic. It is expected to lose the Nigerian contingent of 1,711 within a few weeks. Canada has about 250 men in the Congo force.

There were expressions of outrage from the United States, Britain, France and other members of the Security Council which met to discuss the mounting crisis in the breakaway province of Katanga.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson told the council the "revolting murder" pointed up the need for UN action against the mutinous force of about 1,000 believed to be led by leftist Antoine Gizenga.

Shield From Cancer Hinted as Possible

CHICAGO (AP)—An immunity shield protecting normal persons from developing cancer may be a material manufactured in the liver, three medical investigators suggested today.

They said some evidence of a mechanism of this type has been indicated in animal cancer transplant experiments.

The doctors said several scientists have demonstrated that a cancer suppressing substance is present in a high degree in the blood serum of guinea pigs. They added that they have detected its presence to a lesser degree in the serum of humans.

'Outside Evaluation'—Perrault

(See Page 18)

A major political battle is looming over the price to be paid by the B.C. Toll Authority for the 'Black Ball' ferry lines.

It was touched off when Premier Bennett announced today he intended to pay the asking price of $7,200,000 set by the Puget Sound Navigation Company, the parent firm in Seattle.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault demanded immediately that the payment should not be fixed without referring the matter to "a duly appointed board of marine appraisers."

'FAIR PRICE'

Premier Bennett, who confirmed Thursday the plan to take the Black Ball's B.C. service under public ownership, disclosed on his return to Victoria that he intended to recommend the $7.2 million figure to the Toll Authority and the cabinet.

In Thursday's statement he had indicated that the figure set by shareholders of the Puget Sound company would have to go before the Toll Authority and be worked out.

This means they would go into service late next year or early in 1963.

Today Mr. Bennett said: "This is not overpriced; it's a fair price."

The figure covers five ships, seven terminals, the major franchise between Departure Bay and Horseshoe Bay and some cash investment.

The amount had already been attacked by CCF leader Robert Strachan, who declared Thursday he did not think it was worth $7.2 million.

Mr. Perrault today said: "The need for independent evaluation is even more apparent in view of a Black Ball director, Einar Gunderson, also being a prominent member of the B.C. Bridge and Toll Authority which would authorize the purchase."

OLD EQUIPMENT

After a study of the situation, Mr. Perrault said, it seemed evident the taxpayers could be paying far too much for a company which had little to offer but over-age equipment.

He pointed out that capital assets in Canada of the com-

'MUST BE WILLING TO NEGOTIATE'—JFK

Cold War Extremists Reproached

SEATTLE (AP)—President Kennedy says the United States must be willing to negotiate cold war issues from a position of strength. To preach either war or surrender, he says, does a disservice to the country.

As the Western Allies renew efforts to unify their stand to ward Russia, Kennedy Thursday made clear these views:

1. To encourage "appeasement or war, suicide or surrender," will divide the country, create uncertainty among allies and inspire doubt in the Communist bloc of the West's readiness to defend its rights.

"The United States cannot impose its will on others," he said. "There cannot be an American solution for every world problem."

2. The United States will never negotiate merely for the sake of negotiation, nor will it ever subject freedom to negotiation. But as long as vital interests and goals are clear, "we have nothing to fear from negotiations to the appropriate time and nothing to gain by refusing to play a part in them."

3. Talking out East-West disputes will succeed only if each side can find success in the result. In effect, neither side can expect total victory.

4. Although the French and others may see weakness in taking the initiative in bargaining with Russia, "this nation cannot abdicate to its adversaries" the setting and conditions of negotiations.

Kennedy, accused by some of failing to marshal public support for Western aims, set forth those warnings and objectives at the outset of a western tour.

... AND THEY'RE OFF TO A GOOD START!

In action at last are men and machinery at the site of the Royal Jubilee Hospital's new wing. Photo above shows scene of activity this morning as excavation and site clearing was under way for the five-storey structure. Blasters will remove thousands of cubic yards of hard rock before foundations are poured. Other projects, such as additions to laboratory and observation wing, also are planned.

MONTE ROBERTS

There were many hip-hips and assorted huzzahs! echoing through the streets of this, the Fairest City of Them All, when the B.C. government revealed it was going to increase its interest in the ferry business.

Even this operator, whose main concern with the mainland is the convenience of not having to go there, had to add a wee hip! and a kind of sort of huzzah.

The B.C. government is undoubtedly doing a great thing in buying out Black Ball, and in the process stepping up frequency of service from the vicinity of Nanaimo to the vicinity of (ugh) Vancouver.

But I must confess my hip-huzzahs were delivered through the muffling folds of a crying towel.

Because this, I think, marks the definitive end of the CPR's interest in passenger service over the ocean waves which separate our very own Island from that there mainland.

And no ferry service—no matter how fast, how frequent, how efficient, how reasonably priced—can replace the grand old days of the CPR's Princess fleet.

Call me a reactionary, an out-of-date fuddy-duddy, and I'll admit it.

But every time I pass the CP's Belleville Street establishment, I avert my eyes to avoid seeing the steamers tied alongside, idle and echoing hollowly with memories of the past.

There is, most obviously, nothing that can be done to change the pattern of transportation habits which have relegated the sleek, fast, beautiful pocket liners of the Princess fleet to the threshold of the scrap heap.

Travellers in this day and age appear to wish to get there—wherever "there" is—as quickly as possible.

There's no longer room for the gracious living once offered by the day steamer from Victoria's Inner Harbor to the piers in downtown Vancouver.

Yet allow me, for one, to remember when a journey aboard Pat or Marguerite—or, in earlier years, Vic or Charming or Mary—was a joy from gang plank to gang plank.

Or when the even more leisurely journey by night was filled with the glamour of an ocean voyage, even though only in inland waters.

You can see why my hip, hip, huzzahs are delivered with a slight choke in the throat.

Once upon a time, the necessity of going to Vancouver didn't seem so very bad, because getting there could be fun.

Now—getting there is easy, simple, and ferries leave every hour on the hour.

With all due respect to the forward-thinking government of British Columbia, I wish the Princess liners were not joining the dodo birds.

RECRUITS FOLLOW THE SUN

Albert Head army camp will be the scene of military activity as 200 young recruits from the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Regimental Depot in Edmonton begin 13 weeks' training on Monday.

Taking advantage of Victoria's temperate climate, the army's Western Command has decided to send the recruits here for their second and third phases of basic training.

Normally all training—prior to being posted to regimental duties—is conducted at Griesbach Barracks in Edmonton and Camp Wainwright. The severe Alberta winter, however, makes training difficult.

The young trainees will arrive in Victoria Saturday and head immediately for the Albert Head base.

Borrowing Authorized

The provincial government has given B.C. Electric power to borrow up to $12,000,000.

A cabinet order today gives authority for the new crown agency to borrow any amount up to the $12,000,000 with a government guarantee.

This is the first such order since the government took over the company Aug. 1.

The money will not be used for any specific project, but will be available to meet day-to-day needs of the company.

Similar authority is granted by the cabinet to the other crown agencies such as the PGE Railway, the Toll Authority and the B.C. Power Commission.

Author Must Pay $2,900 Commission

Canadian author Raymond M. Patterson, and Mrs. Patterson, formerly of 10814 Cox, Shoal Harbor, Sidney, were ordered to pay $2,900 in real estate commission on the sale of their property in a judgment handed down by Mr. Justice J. O. Sullivan in B.C. Supreme Court Thursday.

Mr. Patterson, whose last book "The Buffalo Head" was published in New York last August, is now living in Switzerland.

In B.C. Supreme Court, V. and S. Realty Ltd., 556 Johnson, claimed $2,900 commission on the sale of the Pattersons' property to Mr. and Mrs. George M. Ross for $58,000.

Mr. Justice Sullivan ordered that the company should recover the $2,900 commission.

SCHEMED

In his judgment he said it was "patent" that Mr. Ross had a financial interest in the result of the case.

It was clear, Mr. Justice Sullivan added, that there was a scheme between the purchaser and the vendor to "avoid the payment of commission."

Robert A. Price was counsel for the company and Louis Lindholm appeared for Mr. and Mrs. Patterson.

Students Complain About Threats As 'Caper' Ends in Fines of $10

By MICHAEL ROSE

The ever-bubbling pot of rivalry between Victoria College students and Royal Roads cadets boiled over Saturday and culminated today with the fining of 11 students for trespassing.

Night raids and other "pranks" have been going on between the two for years but this is the first time charges have been laid.

Attitudes of the students who participated in the ill-fated raid on Royal Roads about 2 a.m. Saturday ranged between bewilderment, worry and bitterness.

A group estimated at 30 entered the grounds of the officer cadet training establishment with the intention of carrying off "legitimate" trophies of battle.

A total of 12 students and one other man were caught by cadets and RCMP and charged.

The students were called into a room at College early this week and told to appear in RCMP court today.

The 11 pleaded guilty before Magistrate A. L. Thomas and one not guilty.

VEILED THREATS

One spokesman for the group, Ernest Yakimovich, 1256 Rivercombe, said there had been veiled threats of more serious charges.

"We were told that if any of us got off, the service authorities were willing to press more serious charges."

He said those mentioned were: damaging government property, possession of stolen property and theft. Conviction on the first charge carries a maximum penalty of 14 years imprisonment.

COLLEGE SPIRIT

"Our aim was just to promote college spirit," said Donald MacGowan, 2467 East, down, "and none of us went out there with any intention of damaging property."

The students said they went to Colwood Corners by car and then split up and entered the grounds.

An attempt to remove the cadets' ceremonial bell was foiled by rivets. They then tried to haul down and remove a pennant bearing cadet colors and insignia from a flagpole.

A watchman heard the squeaking of the block and gave the alarm. Cadets, in the manner of carnival men at the cry of "Hey Rube," poured out and captured seven raiders after some good-natured tussling.

The remaining five were caught by RCMP and naval authorities near their cars outside the grounds.

"Taking a pennant is one thing," said Mr. M. Gowan today, "but doing damage is quite another."

The students said they had taken a 12-foot sign from the bathhouse, a small peg-type directional sign from a lawn and a rack of four cadet sports pictures.

"TROPHIES"

All three articles they considered legitimate "trophies" of the raid. All were recovered.

Royal Roads authorities also said they took a Klabe ring lifebuoy and untied a dinghy from the jetty.

However students denied taking the ring and pointed out that winds gusting up to 86 miles an hour that night.

All were worried about the apparent severity of service authorities in pressing charges and feared for further reprisals.

"As far as we know now," said Jack Firkins, 151 Linden,

"the commanding officer may think this fine isn't enough."

"I asked if this could be held over our heads and was told we could be charged (with damaging property) any time until the statute of limitations runs out in three years' time."

As far as the students know, they said, no damage of any kind was caused by them.

"The RCMP were very courteous at the time," said George O'Brien, 2659 Avebury. "They were very helpful to us later on and made an extremely fair presentation of the case in court."

The students said RCMP Corporal Robert Rogers told the court he knew rivalry had been going on, he was sure no damage or real harm had been intended and it was just a college prank.

Magistrate Thomas criticized college pranks and told the students they were there to learn. He termed college rivalry and hazing stupid and said if any more cases came up in court they would be dealt with very severely.

CRITICIZED DRESS

The students also said he criticized their dress although all appeared dressed neatly, most in suits or sports jackets and slacks when they were interviewed after court.

"We don't mind if they come up and try to take our sundial and other trophies," said one bewildered student,

"why can't they take the same attitude?"

The following were each fined $10 and $3 costs: George Colgate, 1548 Athlone; David Davies, 3309 Cedar Hill Road; Donald MacGowan, 2467 Eastdowne; Robert Keziere, 1299 Oakmount; Brian Hitchens, 3161 Henderson; Hugh Morrison, 3496 Carter; John Firkins, 151 Linden; Brent Ewing, 3120 Service; Douglas Tribe, 4511 Pachena; Ernest Yakimovich, 1256 Rivercombe; George O'Brien, 2659 Avebury, and one non-student, Robert Clarke, 3364 Burns.

John Genn, 5271 Parker, entered a plea of not guilty and was remanded to Wednesday for trial.

Three Definite For Mayoralty

Smith Enters Race, Edgelow Backs Off

Victoria voters will have plenty of choice in selecting their 1962 council with three candidates in the field for the mayoralty, and probably eight running for the four aldermanic vacancies.

The mayoralty emerged this morning as a three-way fight with Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith in it and Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow out.

There is an outside chance that Ald. M. H. Mooney may still enter the mayoralty but observers expected he would run for re-election as an alderman instead.

Ald. Edgelow decided to skip the mayoralty and seek re-election to a fifth term as an alderman. The pressure of his business "wouldn't give me the opportunity of devoting my full time to the job just now if I was elected as mayor," he said. "But I can serve again as an alderman and I will seek re-election."

NEWCOMER

Also declaring himself a candidate for alderman today was Stanley A. Haynes, 57, a native of this area who has been in the real estate business more than 35 years.

Mr. Smith entered the mayoralty at a full gallop—raising a "home rule" issue and promising he would arrange an "open house" at the B.C. Hydro building so that the public could inspect the building "and see how unsuitable it is for a new City Hall."

Mr. Smith's main opening salvo against mayoralty candidates R. B. Wilson and Elmer McEwen was an argument they should not even be in the race because they live in Oak Bay.

(Both men have business premises in the city.)

"HOME RULE"

"Oak Bay residents have dominated the mayoralty for years and I think it's time Victorians put their foot down and demanded 'home rule,'" Mr. Smith said. "Both my opponents are good men but they should run for Oak Bay council."

"If Victoria is good enough to represent, it's good enough to live in."

Mr. Smith, who served five years as an alderman and is in his fifth year as a Social Credit MLA for Victoria, said any counter-argument that his opponents pay heavy taxes in the city is invalid.

"They pay those taxes for protection to their businesses—for such things as fire and police service, roads and sewers."

"When it comes to representing the people, then they also should live in the community."

Mr. Smith said he also would oppose a proposal to be voted on by ratepayers at the Dec. 14 election—to buy the B.C. Hydro building as a city hall for $660,000.

"I will arrange an open house in the Hydro Building on the Saturday before the election so everyone can come down and see how unsuitable it is for a new city hall."

He said an entirely new building should be built, along with an auditorium and other civic facilities, on the site of the present City Hall.

They could build a new structure for the same cost and create a lot of employment for our workers and put up a city hall to be proud of.

TYPICAL OAK BAY

"But instead we have this typical Oak Bay thinking that we should buy a used building that wouldn't give work to a single soul," he said.

So far, six persons have said they will contest the four aldermanic posts: Ald. Edgelow, Gordon Carter, Mr. Haynes, William Hudson, Cecil Parrott and Ald. Lily Wilson.

Although they still have not declared their intentions, observers expect both Ald. Mooney and Ald. J. L. W. McLean to seek re-election.

Roundabout Crash Brings $250 Fine

A crash into the roundabout early this morning resulted in a $250 fine for Charles Waggett, 2532 Thompson, when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

The accident, in which there was no injury, occurred at 12:15 a.m.

Keen Contests For Esquimalt, Oak Bay Seats

Oak Bay and Esquimalt this year are showing perhaps their greatest interest ever in municipal elections.

Oak Bay will have a three-way contest for the reeveship, and three candidates have come forward already for the three council seats to become vacant at the end of the year. Esquimalt also will have three council seats on the block, and an election is assured with six persons already considered certain candidates.

SELF-CONTAINED

Third and newest of the Oak Bay candidates is 39-year-old Norman Pittam, who announced today he will enter the race with a platform calling for continued development of Oak Bay as a self-contained community.

He favors improved recreational and cultural facilities, such as a library and better parks, and better north-south communications in the municipality "to make our facilities available to all our residents."

This would call for a better bus service, he said.

BEATEN IN 1959

Mr. Pittam was an unsuccessful candidate in the Oak Bay municipal by-election of 1959.

So far his opponents are incumbent Allan Cox and outsider Walter Dodsforth.

Mr. Pittam is an insurance broker.

The reeveship also will be at stake Dec. 7. Incumbent George Murdoch will seek re-election against Coun. Gordon Elworthy and newcomer Jack Barraclough.

The 250-member Oak Bay Ratepayers' Association plans to hold a private, all-candidate meeting in the municipal hall following nomination day Nov. 27, at which it is expected to endorse one or more candidates.

In Esquimalt, Councilors Arthur Fields, Walter Holder and G. T. Sammon will see their terms end Dec. 31, and all three are expected to seek re-election. Their nominations need not be forwarded until Nov. 27, 10 days prior to the election.

EX-NAVY MAN

First new hat in the ring was tossed by Bert Nelson, retired naval man who operates a bowling alley on Esquimalt Road adjacent to the municipal hall.

Also intending to run are Peter Francis, 1347 Sussex, and Leslie Fred Tooby, 935 Old Esquimalt Road.

Both men are dockyard workers and need official permission from the Civil Services Commission before they can officially enter the race.

Neither of the two foresees any difficulty in this regard.

Mr. Francis ran two years ago for the post of councillor and lost by 30 votes. He is an electrical draughtsman.

CRANE OPERATOR

Mr. Tooby is a crane operator at the dockyard and is an active softball and soccer referee in the Victoria area.

"I have been considering for two or three years that I should run," he said. "I have lived nearly all my life in Victoria and have always worked for the betterment of the community."

"I was born in England, but was brought to Canada before I could walk or talk," he added.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

A young sailor who did not like his cell was fined $20 and damages in police court today for ripping out part of the jail.

He was also fined $10 for being drunk in a public place.

Construction in Victoria is expected to hit a record $10,000,000 this year.

City planner Roderick Clark Thursday said issue of a $2,614,000 had put the city over last year's total value of construction with 45 days still to go.

So far this year, permits worth more than $9,400,000 have been issued, compared with the previous record of $9,393,929 set during the 12 months of 1960.

Clear skies of the last few days have given way to a weather system which has arrived over the city from the Pacific.

It is expected to give rain tonight, weatherman William Mackie said today.

"Saturday should be mostly sunny, but beyond that there is further trouble," he said. "We expect cloudy skies Sunday and more rain by Sunday night."

Temperatures tonight will range between 35 and 40 degrees, and rain at higher levels on the Island will be mixed with snow, Mr. Mackie said. High Saturday will be 48 degrees.

Winds will be westerly at 25 miles per hour tonight, then will decrease after midnight.

Forces Move In On 'Butchers'

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters)—United Nations planes have attacked three strongholds of mutinous national Congolese army troops in the Kindu area of Kivu province, according to radio reports received here today.

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The United Nations flew Malayan troops to Kindu today to round up and punish Congolese Army butchers of 13 Italian UN airmen.

Planeloads of Malayans were flown to the Luabala River, port in Kivu province with orders to encircle and disarm the killers and others in a force of 1,000 reported to have been incited to mutiny by the Congo's Lumumbist vice-premier, Antoine Gizenga.

About 80 of the drunken and undisciplined soldiery—undeterred by a 200-man Malayan contingent on duty at the Kindu airfield—shot and cut up the Italians near the town prison Saturday.

Cries of "they are Flemish Belgians" accompanied the massacre. Parts of the bodies were tossed to excited spectators.

BROUGHT SUPPLIES

The mob had set upon the Italians as they dined in the Malayan officers' mess after landing two transports carrying powdered milk and hospital supplies.

The UN organization in the Congo, headed by Sture Linner of Sweden, demanded immediate arrest of the Congolese commander at Kindu—who disavowed responsibility by declaring "you know how soldiers are"—and establishment of a United Nations-Congolese commission to seek out "the remaining culprits."

In a report to New York, Linner said all resources of the UN Congo command would be used to disarm the Congolese, seal off the Kindu area and round up all suspects.

"Pieces of the bodies were distributed to the large crowd gathered to watch the massacre," Linner said, "and some parts of the bodies were also flung at non-Congolese who were present."

"Two mutilated bodies were dragged through the main streets of Kindu and exhibited... All the remains of the bodies were then thrown into the river."

GRUESOME SPECTACLE
Official reports from Kindu residents said hands and feet chopped from the airmen were handed around as trophies. A severed hand was tossed on the desk of a World Health Organization doctor as a gesture of contempt.

UN spokesman George Ivan Smith said the UN handed a letter to Premier Cyrille Adoula insisting on punitive action.

CONGO CHIEF REPORTS

More Troops Definite Need

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Acting Secretary-General U Thant summoned his top Congo advisers into private session today to hear recommendations from the United Nations military commander in the Congo that his forces be strengthened to cope with mounting violence.

U Thant conferred with his Congo advisory committee amid anger at UN headquarters over the brutal slaying of 13 Italian airmen of the UN command by mutinous Congolese soldiers in Kivu province.

Present were Maj.-Gen. Sean McKeown, commander of the UN Congo force, and Conor Cruise O'Brien, chief UN representative in the Congo's Katanga province. They were ordered here to brief U Thant on the situation.

McKeown said on arrival Thursday the UN needs more men and equipment to deal with the mounting crisis. He added that those responsible for the slayings would have to be apprehended but that this would be difficult since Congolese officers have little control over their troops.

The UN Congo force once numbered more than 22,000 men, but is down to 15,490 since the withdrawal of contingents from Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco, Tunisia and the United Arab Republic. It is expected to lose the Nigerian contingent of 1,711 within a few weeks. Canada has about 250 men in the Congo force.

There were expressions of outrage from the United States, Britain, France and other members of the Security Council which met to discuss the mounting crisis in the breakaway province of Katanga.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson told the council the "revolting murder" pointed out the need for UN action against the mutinous force of about 1,000 believed to be led by leftist Antoine Gizenga.

Shield From Cancer Hinted as Possible

CHICAGO (AP)—An immunity shield protecting normal persons from developing cancer may be a material manufactured in the liver, three medical investigators suggested today.

They said some evidence of a mechanism of this type has been indicated in animal cancer transplant experiments. The doctors said several scientists have demonstrated that a cancer suppressing substance is present in a high degree in the blood serum of guinea pigs. They added that they have detected its presence to a lesser degree in the serum of humans.

JFK, Bennett Talk Privately

'More Optimistic Than Ever'
On Columbia Says Premier

By FRANK BUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said today he is "more optimistic than ever" that the Columbia River power project will go ahead.

The premier made the statement on his return this morning to Victoria from Seattle, where he attended a Democratic party banquet at which President John Kennedy was guest speaker.

President Kennedy and Premier Bennett talked together twice during the dinner, and later held a 15-minute meeting in the president's suite at the Olympic Hotel.

Mr. Bennett, in an airport interview here, admitted he met U.S. officials to discuss hydro power development in B.C.

"The reception couldn't have been more friendly," he said. However, the premier refused to confirm or deny the private interview with the president, nor would he say if they talked about the Columbia.

"I'm not going to add or detract from any assumption anybody else makes," he said. But, as Mr. Bennett had explained before going to the Seattle banquet, as a provincial premier he was in no way officially entitled to discuss negotiations on an international question such as the Columbia.

Secrecy Necessitated by Protocol

The secrecy shrouding the private meeting with the president was explained by observers as a necessity of protocol.

Officially the federal government is the sole negotiator with the Americans on developing the Columbia. However, Mr. Bennett was obviously cheered by the reception from the Americans to B.C.'s stand on power.

He wants to sell them all the downstream benefits available to Canada in the U.S. once dams are built at Duncan and Arrow Lakes and Mica Creek in B.C.

He is convinced he can get enough money from the sale to pay for building the three dams.

Ottawa is apparently against this idea and wants the benefits returned as cheap power to the province.

Mr. Bennett said he was very impressed with the friendliness of U.S. government officials toward him as B.C.'s premier.

When introduced at the banquet—a testimonial to his friend U.S. Senator Warren Magnuson—by Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, Mr. Bennett was given a standing ovation, led by the president.

Mr. Mansfield, after a glowing introduction, told guests at the $100-a-plate dinner the premier was doing "a great favor" by attending.

Mr. Bennett said that as far as B.C. is concerned there is no delay here on launching the Columbia project.

He said that through the power commission the province is "doing everything possible" to complete engineering on the three damsites.

Next step will be ratification by Ottawa of the treaty with the U.S. setting out the details. Congress has already ratified it.

Vancouver Stock Closing Sales

VANCOUVER—Closing sales: Granduc went up the $4.10 during the close with heavy trading. Kamloops Copper 3,000 at 34½, Peel 5,000 at 18, Contn. Mines 4,500 at 32, Western Mines 6,000 at 68, Northwest Ventures 2,500 at 24, Trans Mtn Pipe 150 at $15.75, Fort St. John 100 at $2.70.

Mister Bennett seems t' hev bin down there t' collect some o' them downstream benefits already.

Congo seems t' be sufferin' th' same disability as anywhere else—people.

Just as well on'y one candidate kin git elected mayor—there's on'y one thet should.

Evaluation Demanded

(See Page 18)

A major political battle is looming over the price to be paid by the B.C. Toll Authority for the Black Ball ferry lines.

It was touched off when Premier Bennett announced today he intended to pay the asking price of $7,200,000 set by the Puget Sound Navigation Company, the parent firm in Seattle.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault demanded immediately that the payment should not be fixed without referring the matter to "a duly appointed board of marine appraisers."

'FAIR PRICE'

Premier Bennett, who confirmed Thursday the plan to take the Black Ball's B.C. service under public ownership, disclosed on his return to Victoria that he intended to recommend the $7.2 million figure to the Toll Authority and the cabinet.

In Thursday's statement he had indicated that the figure set by shareholders of the Puget Sound company would

B.C. Power Shareholders Get $18.70

VANCOUVER (CJ)—British Columbia Power Corporation today gave notice of a general shareholders meeting Dec. 8 to approve distribution of some $88,000,000 of the $111,000,000 it received in government expropriation of the giant B.C. Electric public utility last August.

The proposal, if approved through amendment of a corporation bylaw regarding reduction of corporation capital, would mean a return to shareholders of $18.70 a share.

BCP, deeply involved in a legal tangle with the provincial government over compensation and other aspects of the BCE takeover, said the meeting also could consider such "other business as may properly come before the meeting without notice."

The corporation's notice said the payment of $18.70 a share out of the $110,985,045 it received from the government for BCE common stock would leave in the hands of the corporation sufficient funds for its corporate business and in provision for possible conversion of Series B debentures of the B.C. Electric Company into BCE stock.

The company has previously told shareholders it has legal advice that conversion of the debentures may still be valid despite government takeover of the B.C. Electric.

Swiss Farmers In Riot

BERN (AP)—Rioting Swiss farmers besieged the parliament building for more than two hours today, repeatedly beating back police.

Several persons were reported injured before police finally dispersed the rioters with tear gas and fire hoses. The farmers were demonstrating for higher food prices. It was the first violent demonstration.

Congo Slayings Stir Italian Deputies

ROME (AP)—Communist deputies angrily stalked out of a stormy Chamber of Deputies session today after hearing world communism blamed for the slaying of 13 Italian airmen assigned to the United Nations force in the Congo.

Hot words were exchanged by Communist, Christian Democrat and Italian Social Movement (Fascist) deputies. The Communists stood up and shouted. Ushers stepped into the centre of the chamber to prevent fistfuffs.

Football Betting Bosses Battle Law

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—U.S. attorney Richard P. Stein said today six syndicate gamblers arrested in connection with a multi-million-dollar football betting operation have begun last-ditch legal manoeuvres to keep out of prison.

'MUST BE WILLING TO NEGOTIATE'—JFK

Cold War Extremists Reproached

SEATTLE (AP)—President Kennedy says the United States must be willing to negotiate cold war issues from a position of strength. To preach either war or surrender, he says, does a disservice to the country.

As the Western Allies renewed efforts to unify their stand toward Russia, Kennedy Thursday made clear these views:

1. To encourage "appeasement or war, suicide or surrender," will divide the country, create uncertainty among allies and inspire doubt in the Communist bloc of the West's readiness to defend its rights.

"The United States cannot impose its will on others," he said. "There cannot be an American solution for every world problem."

2. The United States will never negotiate merely for the sake of negotiation, nor will it subject freedom to its adversaries' the setting and conditions of negotiations.

Kennedy, accused by some of failing to marshal public support for Western aims, set forth those warnings and objectives at the outset of a western tour.

Dressed in an academic robe, he addressed 1,000 faculty members, students and guests at the University of Washington's 100th anniversary convocation.
